VOL XVII. NO. 124. TOLEDO, OHIO, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1892. LAST EDITION. TWO CENTS.

IN THE BEE TO-DAY

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau.
Toledo, O., Sept. 12, 1892.

An area of low pressure is central north of Lake Superior, and has caused cloudy and rainy weather as far south as St. Louis, west to St. Paul, and east to Erie. An area of high pressure is central north of Montana in British America, and is causing moderate cool weather through the region west of the Mississippi river; frost being reported at North Platte. Rain has fallen throughout the lake region, and on the South Atlantic and Gulf states; elsewhere there has been very little rain during the past 24 hours.

In this vicinity fair and slightly cooler weather may be expected to-day. On Tuesday the indications are for fair and cooler weather.

W. E. DONALDSON, Assistant.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Forecast for Ohio—Showers; slightly cooler; southerly winds; becoming westerly.

For Indiana—Showers; followed by clearing; cooler in southern portion; north to west winds.

For Illinois—Fair; preceded by clearing in southern portion to-day or to-night; westerly winds.

For Michigan—Fair, except clearing showers in eastern portion to-day or to-night; slightly cooler in southeast portion; winds becoming westerly.

GOING DOWN!

Something is always going down, but the only declining feature about our elegant stock of furniture is the price. That can't drop much more without touching wholesale figures. Such a magnificent stock of furniture going at ridiculously low figures is attracting crowds of purchasers anxious to secure the choicest articles and the scene presented is like a procession of depositors trying to get their money from a suspended bank. Come and get just what you need before your choice has been taken by an earlier buyer.

Passengers Not Wanted on Fire Island.

The Citizens Rise in Their Might and Object

To Having Quarantined People Among Them.

Preparations Made to Burn the Hotel.

The Owner of the Island Abused for Selling to the State for Such Purposes—Cholera Bulletins.

Quarantine, Sept. 12.—4:15 a. m.—The steamer Cepheus, having landed the Normannia's cabin passenger on the Stonington, just arrived at quarantine dock having on board the second cabin passengers, about two hundred in number.

Dr. Ferguson and Hotel Manager Wall are consulting with Dr. Jenkins about fuel for the Cepheus to again make a trip to Fire Island, and about breakfast for the two sets of cabin passengers who had practically nothing to eat after leaving the Stonington at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The Cepheus returned from Fire Island at 10 o'clock last night and went alongside the Stonington, whence she had started with the passengers destined for Fire Island. The passengers were once more transferred to the Stonington after 50 miles of vain sea voyaging and 50 miles of return. The Islanders refused to let her land.

The police on board the steamer Cepheus express themselves as fully able and willing to cope with the Islip recalcitrants, and believe that there will be no trouble when they are safely on shore and are certain that there can be but one result should a conflict ensue.

Captain Trimble, of Stapleton, is going to Fire Island on the Cepheus—her second trip—as pilot. The Cepheus having coaled and watered, started for the lower bay at 9 a. m.

The Cunarder, Aurania, from Liverpool, which arrived in quarantine Sunday morning, was released at 9:20 this morning and proceeded to her pier.

The North German Lloyder Kaiser Wilhelm II., from Bremen, which arrived on Saturday morning, was released from quarantine at 8 o'clock this morning.

The Netherlands steamer Dubbledam, which arrived on the 8th, was released this morning.

The steamers now held at quarantine are the Waeland, from Hamburg; Amalfi, from Hamburg, and La Champagne, from Cherbourg.

The steamer Amalfi, which arrived from Hamburg this morning, reports all well on board. She has no passengers on board.

New York, Sept. 12.—Following is the official bulletin of the health board issued at 3 o'clock this afternoon: "No cases of cholera have appeared in this city."

Quarantine, Sept. 12.—11:30 a. m.—Dr. Jenkins verifies the statement by Dr. Walser that there is sickness on the La Champagne, and the steamer was ordered detained.

Quarantine, Sept. 12.—Noon—Dr. Jenkins just read the following report, which was received from Dr. Byron at 11 o'clock:

There are no cases of gastric or intestinal trouble among the Rugia's passengers.

On Hoffman island Max Sithwern, aged 2 years, who has bronchitis, is improving.

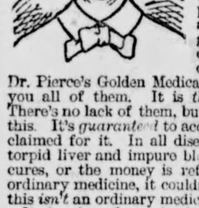
The personal baggage of the Normannia's passengers is being disinfected and fumigated. All patients O. K. for the past 15 hours.

On Swinburne island all is O. K., and all patients are on the way to recovery. Up to midnight there had been admitted to Swinburne island hospital 121 persons. Of these 56 were suspects, 27 were treated, 14 were admitted dead, 13 died in the hospital, 11 were transferred to Hoffman island and 1 was discharged. Of the deaths, 8 occurred within two hours after the time of admission.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The treasury department has received from the department of state a copy of a dispatch dated August 31, from the United states consul at Noglaes, Mexico, suggesting that it would be advisable to establish a quarantine at that point in view of the fact that vessels from the cholera infected districts of Europe are constantly arriving at Guaymas and Mazatlan. The matter has been referred to the supervising surgeon general of the marine hospital service for consideration.

London, Sept. 12.—The steamer Setubal arrived at Cardiff from Hamburg to-day. One of her sailors had died from Asiatic cholera and the vessel was therefore put in quarantine.

The North German Lloyd steamer Ems, commanded by Theodore Jungst, from Bremen, sailed from Southampton for New York at 9 o'clock last night with 393 cabin passengers. No steerage passengers are on board.



Plain enough—the way to a clear complexion, free from blotches, pimples, eruptions, yellow spots, and roughness. Purify your blood, and you have it. With pure, rich blood, an active liver, good appetite and digestion, the hue of health follows. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gives you all of them. It is the blood-purifier. There's no lack of them, but there's none like this. It's guaranteed to accomplish all that's claimed for it. In all diseases arising from torpid liver and impure blood, it benefits or cures, or the money is refunded. With an ordinary medicine, it couldn't be done. But this isn't an ordinary medicine.

It is the cheapest blood-purifier sold, through druggists, because you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

The "Discovery" acts equally well all the year round.

That's the kind of medicine to try.

MADE A NIGHT OF IT.

Later Particulars of the Trip to Fire Island.

Quarantine, Sept. 12.—The iron steamship Cepheus made fast at Dr. Jenkins' dock at 4:15 this morning with about 200 second cabin passengers of the Normannia (cholera suspects) on board.

The Cepheus having embarked the second cabin passengers from the Normannia and the first cabin passengers from the Stonington yesterday afternoon left the Horse Shoe on her 40-mile voyage to Fire Island. The transfer of the passengers from the Stonington required but a few moments, as they were as eager to leave the old sound steamer as they had been to get off the Normannia. So quickly was the transfer made that no personal baggage was taken nor were there provisions aboard the iron boat, except the regular supply for the daily use of the crew. For the purpose of protecting the debarkation at Fire Island, Police Sergeant Ivory and a detail of eight men were parties to the trip. Once outside of Sandy Hook the steamer felt the sea which was fast being increased by the stiff southeast breeze and when the boat headed in towards Fire Island there were many cases of seasickness and the ills on the Stonington faded into insignificance when compared with the misery of the immediate moments.

To add to the distress of the situation it was found there was no pilot on board and the captain was unwilling to attempt the tortuous channel in the darkness, it being after 7 o'clock at the time.

Those in charge on board apparently knew nothing of the intention to send a pilot to them from among the boatmen of Babylon and after a slight delay the Cepheus turned her head in the direction of Sandy Hook.

Then it was that many of the passengers expressed their disgust in forcible language. They had wanted to leave the Stonington and had wanted to land on Fire Island. The denial of the latter privilege more than dispelled the joy of the former privilege. To add to the discomforts the lack of food was discovered and in lieu of the expected warm meal on Fire Island, their return journey only increased their pangs of hunger to satisfy which there was no supplies. When the Horse Shoe was reached the first cabin passengers were transferred back to the Stonington while the second cabin passengers which had not left the Normannia until taken off on the Cepheus remained on board the latter.

Dr. Sanborn, who had been in charge during the trip, resumed his post on the Stonington and did what he could to get the supperless people in his charge to bed, for when the Sound steamer was reached at 10:30 Capt. Tribble and all of his crew were abed.

After making the second cabin people as comfortable as possible in the saloon of the Cepheus, which has no sleeping accommodation, Dr. Ferguson and Mr. Wall decided to visit Dr. Jenkins, as these problems were serious. First, breakfast for nearly 300 people in their charge; second, coal and water for the steamer before she could make another eighth mile journey to Fire island.

After consulting Dr. Jenkins it was decided to put on board coal then on the dock at the upper boarding station, where water was to be had in abundance.

Fifteen men from Wilkinson's detective agency on Broadway reported to the health officer, and in command of Thomas J. Lynch. They were a portion of the 35 who have been engaged as quarantine patrol for Fire island. They were told to go aboard the Cepheus. It was shortly after 7 o'clock when the Cepheus turned her head towards the lower bay, carrying all who were on board when she arrived except three policemen who, in getting their breakfast, failed to return on board before the steamer left her dock.

RIOT THREATENED.

Serious Times on Fire Island—No Cholera Wanted.

Surf Hotel, Fire Island, N. Y., Sept. 12.—There has been more excitement in the last twelve hours at Fire Island than during the whole summer season. The sale of the place to the state for quarantine purposes has created a great hubbub among the people of the towns of Islip and Babylon, who predict all kinds of dire calamities as the result of landing from vessels infected with cholera upon the beach. After the news was received that Governor Flower had given orders to buy the island, the board of health of the town of Islip, in which Fire Island is, called a mass meeting of citizens of the town of Islip, in which Fire Island passengers at any place within the town jurisdiction.

Suffolk hall, where the meeting was held, was crowded when Supervisor W. H. Young, the president of the board of health, called it to order. Speeches were made by many prominent residents, who denounced the proposed use of the island, predicting great injury to the property adjoining, and the ruin of the oyster and fish industries of the great south bay.

A committee consisting of Supervisor Young, Justice Clerks Studley, O'Brian and Powell, Dr. W. A. Baker, and J. S. Gilbert, constituting a board of health, was appointed to go to Fire Island with twenty deputy constables to protest against the use of the island for quarantine purposes, and resist the landing of passengers.

They left in sailboats late at night, arriving there in the morning. The deputies were placed on guard when President Charles G. Wilson and Dr. Cyrus Edson, of the New York board of health, who had come to Babylon by a special train, arrived in a sailboat at 3 o'clock in the morning. They were quickly surrounded by the deputies, who made demonstrations against D. S. S. Sammis, owner of Fire Island, making all kinds of threats against him for selling it.

President Wilson informed Mr. Sammis that Governor Flower had authorized the purchase for $210,000 and that he had a certified check for $50,000 to pay as soon as the papers were signed. Mr. Sammis then turned it over to President Wilson, as the representative of Health Officer Jenkins, all the guests and most of the servants having left yesterday afternoon. When President Wilson appeared about 10 o'clock this morning, after breakfast, the local board of health and a hundred others from the main land, the crowd composed mostly of boys and men, made demonstrations, using threats against the state, Mr. Sammis, and everybody concerned.

Coroner W. H. Moore, of Bay Shore, continually harangued them. At 11 o'clock President Wilson met the board of health and explained all the circumstances of the purchase and the intended use of the island. Supervisor Young and Dr. Baker stated that it would ruin property and industries and endanger the health of the adjoining communities, and asserted that the local board of jurisdiction was paramount to the state board and would resist any attempts to land passengers.

At the sending of the dispatch affairs are assuming a serious aspect at Fire Island. Although only 7:30 o'clock in the evening this will very likely be the last word sent to-night, as it has transpired that the sympathizers with the local board of health have been considering the feasibility of cutting off all telegraphic communications between Fire island and the city. The men from Islip and other points on the main shore appear to have decided to bid defiance to both the bidding of Gov. Flower and the instructions of the state board of health. They seem to have become utterly lawless as well as reckless. As it grew dark men who had been concealed in the shadows of out-buildings, began to move about more freely as if they were certain of concealing their identity. Pickets were posted and a regular system of signals were arranged. There was no telling the exact number of men thus engaged on the island, but there certainly could not have been fewer than 50 and there may have been double that number.

A taste of the temper and cunning of these fellows had already been afforded President Wilson and his associates. A search being deemed advisable piles of inflammable material had been found heaped up against each end of the Ramschakle hotel, which if lighted would have destroyed the building in a very short time, for, being old and dry, it would burn like tinder. When the machinations of the enemy were fully understood, Mr. Wilson promptly divided his associates of the health department and the newspaper men into watches of six men each, who should patrol the building throughout the night, each watch doing three hours at a stretch. Even President Wilson stood his turn; and when this arrangement was effected all hands felt more comfortable. The first news of the Cepheus had been received a little after 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when a dispatch came to hand saying the iron steamboat was off Point Lookout with 267 cabin passengers on board. This was a great surprise and annoyance to Mr. Wilson, who had sent special orders to have the Cepheus arrive at Fire Island as near noon as possible, and in no event to leave quarantine later than the noon hour. Mr. Wilson had already arranged with Captain Charles Wicks, of the Fire island life station to pilot the Cepheus across the bar. At first Captain Wicks had demurred and had finally told Mr. Wilson frankly that Superintendent Arthur Dominy had threatened him with the loss of his place if he brought the steamer in. Mr. Wilson then promised him a place which would pay him twelve hundred dollars a year in case he lost the nine hundred dollar position he already held, for bringing the Cepheus over the bar. Wicks agreed to this, but when the Cepheus appeared off the bar at 6:45 o'clock, he had not turned up. When it was quite dark he appeared and said it was impossible for him to bring in the Cepheus or even to go out and explain the situation. In spite of his protestations it was evident that Captain Wicks had been intimidated.

INJUNCTION GRANTED.

Passengers to be Restrained From Landing on Fire Island.

Babylon, L. I., Sept. 12.—This village is in a state of the wildest confusion. Angry men are at every corner uttering deep threats against the proposed invasion from the cholera-laden Normannia and Rugia. It is quite evident that the residents are determined to prevent by extreme masures the landing of the steamboat Cepheus.

This morning Judge Wilmot M. Smith left for Brooklyn to apply to Judge Barnard, of the supreme court, for an injunction restraining the passengers from landing.

Ex-Proprietor Sammis, of the Surf hotel, left for New York on the 8 o'clock train and had to be escorted to the railroad depot by a bodyguard, the mob being determined to make an example of him for disposing of his property.

All the wealthy residents of the vicinity, including E. B. Sutton, of the 'Frisco line; Judge Benjamin D. Silliman, ex-district attorney of the eastern district; Henry B. Hyde, of the Equitable Insurance company; H. V. Post, C. H. Sands, son-in-law of the late Alexander McCue, once solicitor of the treasury, have gone to Brooklyn to aid Judge Smith.

Almost everybody in the village is armed and will resist any invasion. Justice of the Peace James B. Cooper, says that the hotel and all its surroundings will be burned to the ground if a landing is attempted.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Judge Barnard has issued a temporary injunction restraining Gov. Flower, D. P. Sammis, Dr. Jenkins and others from using Fire Island as a quarantine station.

OPENED IN MADRID.

The Deeds of Columbus Commemorated.

One Foreign Government Sets a Pace Which it is Hoped All Will Follow.

New York, Sept. 12.—A dispatch from Madrid says that the Historic American Exposition was inaugurated this morning with imposing ceremonies. The United States was represented by the American embassy and a delegation from the Smithsonian institution. The exposition is held under the auspices of the government in commemoration of the fourth centennial of the discovery of America.

The chief exhibit is located in the national museum, a splendid new palace just completed, and which was also opened for the first time to-day.

This exhibit comprises American objects of every kind, with special relation to the condition of North, South and Central America prior to and during the period of discovery and colonization.

The exhibit contributed by the National museum and the museum of the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, is in charge of G. Brown Goode, of Washington, and Stewart Culing, of Philadelphia, both of whom are honored guests of the government to-day.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

New York, Sept. 12.—Frederick Ott, 50 years old, who is said to have been a commercial traveler, committed suicide this morning at 2014 Third avenue, by strangling himself. The body was taken to the morgue.

Corbett and Party Arrive in New York.

The Champion Cheered Along the Way.

Notes of General Interest to the Thousands Who Love Out-Door Sports.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Corbett and his party, in a special car attached to the Washington limited of the Richmond & Danville road, reached here at 7:40 this morning, 40 minutes behind the scheduled time. Owing to the early hour of arrival there were few persons at the depot to welcome the new champion. The crowd, though small, was enthusiastic and when Corbett and his party left the car, five minutes after their arrival for a drive, he was greeted with cheers. The party entered carriages and were driven up Pennsylvania avenue, returning to their car shortly before 9 o'clock at which time they left for New York over the Pennsylvania road. The train, if on time, will reach Baltimore at 10:08, Philadelphia 12:40, Jersey City 3:10, and New York, 3:20.

It was the intention of the party to leave here at 7:40, reaching New York at 1:10, but owing to their train being behind time, they missed connection and were obliged to wait for the 9 o'clock express.

New York, Sept. 12.—The Corbett party has arrived.

—::—::—

New York, Sept. 12.—John L. Sullivan got back from New Orleans Saturday, accompanied by Charley Johnson. The ex-champion came through the Grand Central station, at Forty-second street, with a well banged up head, until just as he reached the gates the crowd of at least 600, who had assembled, began to cheer him.

John had not known exactly how the New York people would receive him, and this little noisy reception made him smile. A second later somebody proposed three cheers for "the greatest champion yet known," and all hands responded with a will. Sullivan now held his head up and beamed on the assemblage as he never did when a winner. He was very much tickled, and passed out of the station to the Vanderbilt hotel a block away in better spirits than he has been since he got whipped September 7. Policemen when necessary to make a passage through the crowd in the station and on the sidewalks to the hotel, but John L. finally got there and did the right thing after a long railroad journey. He took a bath and went to sleep.

Just before he took his nap he was asked if it was true that he had declined the offer of Corbett to give him a benefit. "Yes," said John, " it is true. I guess that one defeat will not stop me from going ahead, and I want no favors at the hands of a man who beat me. I can get along without him. Corbett is a good young fellow, and he beat me fair, but I don't want his services nor his money. Ain't I John L. Sullivan yet?"

He took a short nap and then received a hundred or more friends. A few had the nerve to ask him how he was licked without making a return that could be called a good punch, except one on Corbett's breast. "Oh," replied John to the questions, "I could not get near him. He had too long arms for me. Why, that young fellow's arms stuck out like branches on a tree, and he can hit a hard punch, too. Those stories about his being clever, but having no hitting power, are all rot. He can hit like — when he lands, and his jabs are terrors, hard and fast. He's all right and will make a big reputation for himself."

"Do you think he will hold the championship as long as you did?" was asked.

"You can't tell about that," replied Sullivan. "There are two or three of those jabbers who might get in several times on the nose and make him bleed and weaken him. I scarcely think that any man is as clever as Corbett, but you can't tell. There is one thing I can tell, that is that the young man has bushels of thousands right in his hands which he can reap within a year or so, and if he takes chances before the end of that time he is a — fool."

Then John went to bed. That the big fellow was sober when he reached New York may be judged from his talk in this interview. His face still showed signs of the cracking that Corbett gav ehim. His nose, which had sixteen stitches put in the skin that covers it after the fight, was still swollen, and his lips protruded. Both eyes showed signs of dark rims. Sullivan will open with his show in Providence, R. I., in two weeks.

—::—::—

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.—Frank O'Reilly, the wealthy builder and contractor of Orange, N. J., who passed through the city en route home from New Orleans, tells the following, which he had direct from the lips of Dick Roche, McAuliffe's backer:

"On Monday night, the evening of the fight, McAuliffe got hilarously drunk. Roche became aware of it and he was furious. He threatened to forfeit the stake and even started to do so, but the situation sobered McAuliffe sufficiently for him to plead for dear life with Roche, and the latter finally succombed to the pugilist's entreaties."

—::—::—

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.—Ben Mulford, jr., the well-known base ball writer, says Sullivan after his defeat said to him, while bemoaning his defeat: "I ought to have been smart enough to retire after my last fight. Why, I won from Jake Kilrain by a scratch, and my legs were far from being 'right' in that fight. This young fellow is clever. Why, he hit me wherever and whenever he pleased, and I could not reach him. I knew at the close of the fifth round that I had but one choice to win. I realized clearly that unless I could land a knock-out blow, I was gone. I gave that youngster openings that I never offered to any living man before in the hope that he would rush in and get within range of my right. He fooled me. No bait was tempting enoug to trap him. My legs have not been good for several years; I will have to admit that now. They talk of Corbett and Jackson. Why, I believe this young fellow would eat Jackson up if they should ever meet again."

—::—::—

The biggest loser on the Sullivan-Corbett fight, as far as can be ascertained, was Smiling John Kelly, of New York, the ex-base ball umpire, who backed the great champion of champions for $21,000, an amount that would carry an ordinary man through life very comfortably. John felt the loss greatly, but it did not break his face in the least, as the same old smile lighted up his countenance as he said with a sigh: "I will have to commence all over again."

He was not jovial over the situation, but took it in a sensible manner, and said a fellow in the betting business is liable to get it in the neck at any time, and often when he thinks he has the biggest chances of winning, or as the sports say, "has a cinch."

What a mosquito uses when he bites is made up of his attenor, his clypeus, his hypopherynx, his labium epipharynx, his labrum, his mandibles, and his maxillor.

CREAM'S CASE.

London, Sept. 12.—The counsel for Thomas Neill Cream, accused of the murder of Matilda Clover and other girls by strychnine poisoning, made application at the Old Bailey to-day for the adjournment of the trial of Cream until the October session, on the ground that Cream had not time to prepare his defense against the several charges. The application was granted.

COUNTERFEITER ARRESTED.

Cape Charles, Va., Sept. 12.—Joseph Sears was arrested at Painesbury, a colored settlement in Northampton county, Sunday morning, and is in jail awaiting the arrival of the United States secret service authorities, who have been telegraphed for. Sears is a notorious counterfeiter.

IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Secretary Foster, of the treasury department, arrived from New York at midnight and is at the treasury department this morning.

BIG BLAZE IN ALBANY.

The State Printers' Office Destroyed.

Adjoining Buildings Contribute to the Loss.

Over Half a Million Dollars' Worth of Property Consumed in a Few Hours.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Shortly before 2 o'clock this morning flames were discovered in the upper floor of the old Middle Dutch church building, which froms an L from the Hudson avenue building to Beaver street, standing in the center of the big business block bounded by South Pearl, Greene, Beaver streets and Hudson avenue.

The fire appeared to be in the rear of the upper floor of the old church building where it joins the Nelson Lyon building. The whole of the L, through to Beaver street was occupied by James B. Lyon, state printer, except a portion of the northeast corner of the building on the ground floor, which was occupied by the C. F. Williams Printing company.

The flames spread with frightful rapidity up through the stairways of the Hudson avenue building, and soon broke through the roof, running along the cornice. In 20 minutes the whole interior of the building was a seething crater.

A general alarm was sent in and soon the whole fire department was at work on the conflagration. At 2:30 the whole front of the building toppled over and fell with a crash into Hudson avenue, the rebounding debris flying through store windows and doors of the buildings on the opposite side of the street.

Fortunately no one was injured, but there were many narrow escapes, there being an immense crowd in the vicinity.

Everything contained in the Hudson avenue building is a total loss.

The lower floor was divided into stores and was occupied by F. G. Mix, agent for the Columbus Wagon company; W. C. Geel, umbrellas; John Ingmire, paper hangings; H. H. Walsh, saddlery. The four upper floors were occupied by Russell Lyman, shirt and collar manufacturer, and Hughes & Simpson, paper box manufacturers.

Adjoining the Lyon building on the east is the four story brick building owned and occupied by Edwin A. King, bonnet bleacher.

The big chimney of the Lyon building fell on this structure, together with a 20-foot wall that surmounted it, crashing through the roof and tearing out half of the rear wall. Then the state printing building caught fire and in a very short time was a mass of flames.

At 4 o'clock the fire communicated to the rear of the Hotel Columbia and in a short time what was once the armory of the Jackson corps was destroyed.

The fire worked into the interior of the building and it was soon gutted. It next entered the rear of the Hotel Fort Orange, and between fire and water the interior of the building was soon a wreck.

Williams Printing company's plant is also a total loss. The flying sparks spread in all directions and the American hotel was set on fire a number of times, as was also the Albany theater and a number of other big buildings.

At 4:30 the fire was under control and all danger of its spreading was past. Everything combustible in the church building and the front addition had been consumed and nothing left standing but the bare walls.

The losses so far as can be ascertained at present are as follows:

The Hudson avenue building, $75,000; James B. Lyons, state printing house, $200,000; Williams Printing company, $10,000. A building in the rear of Columbia hotel, $6,000; hotel Germania damaged $2,000.

The total loss cannot yet be estimated, but will probably reach half a million dollars. It is impossible to get the insurance on the losses yet, but it is believed that it will cover the losses pretty fully.

CANADIAN AFFAIRS.

Sir John Abbott's Mission Is an Important One.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 12.—Sir John Abbott will be accompanied to England by Hon. Mr. Foster, important business in connection with the financial management of Canadian loans in London requiring the presence of the finance minster there.

While in England Messrs. Abbott and Foster will confer with the colonial and foreign offices in regard to the betterment of the diplomatic relations of Canada with the United States and other countries.

This is in accordance with a resolution adopted at the last session of parliament, setting forth that it was expedient that communications be opened with her majesty's government in order to bring about such fuller representation of Canadian interests at Washington and at capitals of other countries in which such representation may be found desirable, as may be consistent with the proper relations which should exist between Great Britain and Canada. The two ministers will leave Canada in about two weeks.

FIRE IN A HOTEL.

Several People Injured by Jumping from Windows.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—At an early hour this morning fire broke out in the Chambly hotel, situated on Jacques Cartier square. The boarders on the third floor had to jump from the windows and in so doing several, among them Maxime Fortiahault, aged 35; Baptiste Charbonneau, and Jules Conmery, sustained injuries more or less severe.

When the fire was got under control, which was not before the whole building had been gutted, a search was made, when the charred remains of two men were found. One was a sewing machine agent named Turcott and the other a stableman. A medical student named Cidale was found so badly burned that he died on reaching the hospital. The loss on building and contents is about $10,000.

CHEERS FOR THE CHAMPION.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 12.—Over 1,000 persons greeted Champion Corbett when the train bearing his party rolled into the station here to-day at 12:02. Workingmen rushed from the shops around the station and when the crowd caught sight of the streamer "The Champion of the World" on Corbett's car, cheer after cheer arose. Corbett was led up the platform by Manager Brady and introduced amidst great cheering.

AT PRINCE ALBERT'S FEET

A Gambler Loses All His Money

And Then Dies the Death of a Suicide.

A Royal Entertainment Spoiled by a Man Who Had Risked and Lost His All.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—The Fremdenblatt has a dispatch from Monaco giving an account of a sensational tragedy at that place.

Prince Albert, of Monaco and his wife, the Princess Alice, on returning from their recent tour, were received with great enthusiasm by the people of the principality, the attaches of the Casino turning out especially in strong force to greet him.

The little army of members was drawn up at the landing as a guard of honor and the governor and council were present to deliver addresses.

The cannon thundered a greeting and the scene was of a most joyous and festal character, when suddenly a young man burst through the throng and rushed towards Prince Albert and the princess. He was well dressed but his wild and disorderly appearance at once caused dismay among the group which surrounded the sovereign.

In his hand he grasped a weapon and before anybody could interfere he raised the pistol and putting it close to his head, fired and fell dead at the feet of the Princess Alice.

The princess nearly fainted. She gave a cry of alarm and sank back in the arms of her husband. A dozen officers sprang forward and seized the prostrate body, only to find that life was extinct. The life blood which oozed from the wound almost stained the garments of the princess. On searching the body not even a centime was found, but there was a ticket to the Casino, which told the story of his fate. He had evidently been overcome by despair after losing all he had in the great gambling establishment which supplies a revenue to support the prince of Monaco in luxury, and had determined to end his life at the feet of the prince.

Prince Albert and the princess were so shocked that the reception ceremonies came to an almost abrupt conclusion and they both hurried once more aboard their magnificent yacht and sailed toward the south. The body of the suicide was borne to an unmarked grave in the cemetery, which contains so many victims of M Blanc's gambling tables.

THE ELECTION IN MAINE

First Trial of the Australian Ballot.

Both Sides Claim They Will be Aided by It.

Tom Reed's Majority Will be Cut Down by Many Hundred Votes.

Bangor, Me., Sept. 12.—The state election is in progress to-day, and the indications at an early hour this morning were that a heavy vote would be polled. This is the first election in the state under the Australian ballot law, and both sides claim that the new method of voting will prove an element in their favor.

Both parties have conducted an energetic campaign for the past few weeks.

The friends of ex-Speaker Reed say that he will have a comfortable plurality, although they hardly expect that the plurality of two years ago, 4,800, will be repeated, for the reason that the democrats did practically nothing that year, while this year they are well organized and expect to get out nearly their entire strength.

The vote for governor in 1890 was as follows: Burleigh, republican, 64,214; Thompson, democrat, 45,331; Clark, prohibitionist, 2,081. Burleigh's majority, 18,883.

In 1888 Harrison received a majority in the state of 23,253.

DIED IN SARATOGA.

Miss Clarissa Caldwell Lathrop Goes to Her Reward.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Miss Clarissa Caldwell Lathrop, of New York, founder and national organizer of the Lunacy Law Reform league, died here last night. She was a daughter of Gen. Wm. E. Lathrop, of Rochester, and some years ago was imprisoned in a lunatic asylum until after many efforts she managed to have a writ of habeas corpus issued and was adjudged entirely sane. She has since devoted herself to rescuing other sane prisoners and has been very successful. The remains will be taken to Rochester to-night for burial in charge of a committee of the Lunacy Reform league.

PEOPLE'S PARTY.

St. Louis, Sept. 12.—The national executive committee of the people's party is in session here to-day. It was reported that the contributions to the funds of the party had been more general and liberal than anticipated, and that the general prospects of the party were decidedly bright. The reports from the south and west were said to be specially encouraging. A member of the committee says that the populists propose between now and November to give the country the hottest campaign it has ever seen.

POSTOFFICE CLERKS.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 12.—The fourth annual convention of the National Association of Postoffice Clerks opened this morning in the district court room of the United States building with a large attendance. The business to be transacted is of a routine character, and most of the time will be given up to pleasure seeking, an elaborate program having been prepared by the local committee.

COLORADO DEMOCRATS.

Pueblo, COol., Sept. 12.—The democratic convention was called to order at noon to-day by Hon. F. T. Arkle. There are prospects of a warm fight between the Cleveland, or straight party men, and the fusionists or anti-Cleveland element. The probabilities are that the latter will win.

FAILURES.

Dublin, Sept. 12.—A Belfast dispatch pto the Freeman's Journal says that the depression in the linen trade has caused the suspension of a firm in that city with liabilities amounting to £30,000. Another firm in the same trade has failed with liabilities of £20,000 and more failures are expected.

WANTS HIS ARMS.

New York, Sept. 12.—Francisco Gonzales, a merchant who consigned a ship load of munitions of war to himself at Port of Spain, Trinidad, and whose boat, the South Portland, containing the cargo, was detained by order of the United States government, went to Washington yesterday to lay his case before the state department.

NICE TRIP.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 12.—George C. Mallory, of Morris Cove, is planning a trip to the world's fair on a small steam launch. His route will be to New York, then up the Hudson, through the Erie canal to Buffalo and then by the lakes to Chicago, a sail of about 1,100 miles.

SIX PERSONS KILLED.

Another Fatal Disaster in the East.

The Quincy Horror Almost Duplicated.

One Train Runs Into Another and Scatters the Dead and Dying in All Directions.

Boston, Mass, Sept 12—The horror of the great Quincy accident was recalled Saturday night when a through frieght express train, west-bound, on the Fitchburg railroad, ran into a passenger train standing on the out-bound track at West Cambridge Junction, telescoping the rear car, killing six persons outright and injuring nearly forty others, three of whom have since died.

Passenger train No 131, due to leave Boston at 10:15 p. m., started on time. When West Cambridge Junction was reached the engineer found it necessary, owing to the dense fog, to run close to the cross-overs in order to see if he had the right-of-way from the signal tower, which is located close by.

The passenger train was five minutes late, and about the same hour the local passenger train from Waltham, scheduled to leave there at 10:30 o'clock, was due at West Cambringe Junction also.

The west-bound train which left Boston had come to a full stop, in order that the east-bound train from Waltham, which had the right of way, could pass that point before it crossed over to the Watertown branch.

While standing near the cross-over, the express train, which was bound west, came thundering along, and just as the passenger train started to cross to the Watertown branch the freight train crashed into the rear car of the passenger train

The pilot and cylinder boxes of the freight engine were poked underneath the forward truck of the rear passenger car, which made it almost impossible for any human being to escape without injury who occupied seats in that car. On the rear end of the ill-fated car a man's legs were dangling, the trunk being found a quarter of a mile down the track. The prevailing impression was that it was a tramp stealing a ride on the pilot of the freight engine or tucked away on the rear truck of the passenger car.

Engineer Goodwin of the freight train, is in the Cambridge hospital, suffering from a bad shaking up, but is not seriously injured. Kireman Eugene Alexander escaped without injury. They stuck to their engine.

The passenger cars, other than the rear one, were not very much injured, but the shock to their occupants was only a little less severe than that sustained by those in the last car.

As soon as the crash came there was at once a wild rush to get out of the cars. Frantic men and women rushed about in a purposeless way, shrieking and groaning. Those who were in the station, and residents of the vicinity, gathered with surprising rapidity. Flames began to burst from the wrecked freight cars. Two alarms were hurriedly sounded, and the fire department soon put out the flames. The station was turned into an emergency hospital, to which those taken from the wreck were removed and cared for. One by one the dead bodies were brought in, and placed upon the floor. Mangled by the crash of timbers, scalded by steam, and blackened by fire, they presented a sickening appearance. The groans of the injured and the cries of those who were searching for missing friends and relatives added to the horrors of the scene. Vehicles of all descriptions were pressed into service, and began hurriedly to transport the injured to the Cambridge city hospital. The doctors were greatly aided by the women of the West Cambridge district who braved the horrors of the terrible scene in the depot to make bandages and bring water and stimulants to the injured and dying. As quickly as the injured could be attendrd to, the dead, many of whom were burned or scalded beyond all recognition, were taken to Long's undertaking establishment, there to await the action of the medical examiner, Swan.

There was one heart-rending scene enacted. A young man, accompanied by one of the railroad squad, pushed his way into the undertaker's room, and said that he was looking for his father. A body was uncovered, and the man gazed upon the disfigured face as though stunned. Gasping "that's him," he burst into tears. He proved to be the son of John Hudson, who was early taken from the wreck. This case is a particularly sad one, as the unfortunate man leaves a widow and family of eight children.

It will be a difficult matter to identify some of the dead. Some are burned to a crisp, others frightfully mangled and one so badly cut up that unless identification can be made by the clothing he, for it was a man, may finally rest in an unmarked grave.

The work of clearing away the debris was pushed vigorously all night by a large wrecking gang and by 11:30 yesterday forenoon both tracks had been cleared sufficiently to allow over-due freight trains to pass. The section of the track upon which the accident occurred was roped off and a large force of police kept the immense crowd of sightseers from interfering with the workmen.

The complete list of the killed and injured as far as known are as follows:

I. J. Sullivan, aged 50 years, a pawnbroker of No. 12 Norman street, Boston.

Leon O. Raymond, of Winchendon, a brakeman on the freight train.

John Hudson, aged 51 years, of Watertown; leaves a widow and eight children.

James Lane, of East Watertown.

John H. Barnes, Maple street, Newton.

Miss Retta Feyler, of Waltham.

Benjamin Tuck, an old man of Waltham, died on way to Cambridge hospital.

Miss Margerie Adams, of Waltham, a watch factory employe, died at the hospital, and H. H. Merrifield, of Watertown, died at his home.

Cornelius Doyle, of Waltham, receiving clerk of the Finehburg railroad, left arm broken in several places and severe injuries; probably prove fatal.

John Reagan, of Watertown, sprained knee and arm; not serious but painful.

Frank Mills, of Watertown, very bad scalp wound, hands cut and sprained.

Andrew Doyle, of Watertown, bad fracture of the leg; severely scalded on the side and hip, with bad scalp wounds.

Edmond Doyle, son of the above, scalp wound and cut near the right eye.

G. M. Spear, of Waltham, fractured ribs and bruises.

Thomas O'Connell, of Waltham, scalp wound and concussion.

Fred Warren, of Waltham, slight face wounds and badly shaken up.

Robert Orr, of Newton; fractured collar bone and painful scalp wound.

Thos. Hinds, of Waltham, scalp wound and badly bruised.

Herbert P. Goodwin, engineer of the colliding freight train, probably cracked rib; final diagnosis not made, but injuries are not serious.

Mary Darcis, of Watertown, slightly cut and bruised.

Eleanor O'Hern, head injuries and burns.

Florence E. Park, No. 153 Worcester street, Boston, legs and feet injured; also shock.

Kate White, Cambridge, slightly cut and burned.

G. S. Murphy, of No. 105 Pine street, Boston, cut on the head.

Wm. O'Hern, of Watertown, cut on the head and slight facial injuries.

Peter Whitney, of Watertown, is injured.

John McPhe, of Watertown, broken ribs and bruises.

Patrick Outs, of Watertown, side and head injured.

Patrick Downey, injured about the head.

Thomas Berrum, head cut and bodily injuries.

Mrs. Fahey, slight injuries.

James Smith, slight injuries.

C. S. Hall, of Waltham, head cut.

Mrs. George Wright, of Concord avenue, Cambridge, slight injuries.

Mrs. Mary Ann Elliott, of No. 69 Moore street, Newton; badly shaken.

Harry Elliott, of No. 69 Moore street, Newton, cut and bruises.

Thomas Cane, of Watertown, painful bodily injuries.

Thomas Lennox, of Watertown, cuts and bruises.

GOOD ATTRACTIONS.

Dockstader, Lost in New York and the Wonderland.

A Big Bill at the Cosy Wonderland This Week—Dockstader's Company—A Tank Play.

Lew Dockstader and his famous minstrels will be at Wheeler's this evening, and it is a matter of fact that the house will be crowded to its greatest capacity.

Among the leading fun makers are George Powers, comedian and banjo soloist; Frank Dumont, the minstrel Shakespeare, who has arranged two very funny sketches entitled "The Cake Walk" and "Rustic Anna"; Falke and Semours, the musical magnates; William Rowe, the great somersault pedestal dancer; Blocksom and Burns, billed as the aristocratic cranks, and John C. Harrington, singing and dancing comedian. Besides there are eight cultivated vocal soloists and a large well-trained chorus. Also a fine band and orchestra under the direction of Prof. Ad Stork. The compay is under the management of Harry J. Clapham, which alone is a guarantee that everything will be first-class and of the highest order.

A Realistic Production.

Lost in New York opens at the People's this evening for a week's engagement. The play tells an interesting story which is set off by realistic scenery and brightened up by clever specialties. Perhaps the best scene in the play is the East river by moonlight. The stage is converted into a river of real water on which steamboats actually run.

Another good scene is that of Gramercy park, true to life with the big fountain playing in the center of the square. This is the sixth season of the piece and it is still a drawing card. Many sensational plays have been written, but few have approached Lost in New York in excellence and elaborate stage setting.

Big Show This week.

The Wonderland will be right in line this week with a clever stage performance and startling features in the curio hall. Among the artists engaged for the week are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morphet, who perform some clever illusions; Strasberger's performing monkeys, Baska, the Lightning water colorist; the Fitzgibbon family, five in number; Tony Ryan, who is known as the mad musician and does one of the funniest musical acts on the stage; Maud Rivelle, and Jas. J. Morton, specialist. It will be a big show and well worth seeing.

HORRIBLE CONFESSION.

A Woman Says She Ignited Her Sister-in-Law's Clothing.

Millersburg, O., Sept. 12.—Nine years ago Martha E. Johnson, a weak-minded sister of William K. Johnson, was fatally burned by her clothing igniting. The sister made her home with her brother, who resides ten miles south of here near Tunnel Hill, a station on the Dresden branch of the Cleveland, Akron & Columbus railroad. At the time it was thought the poor unfortunate met her death by accidental means, but recent developments and the evidence given before the grand jury indicate that a murder was committed.

Rev. J. T. Hoak, minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, recently conducted a big revival in the vicinity of Mr. Johnson's house. His wife, who was regular in attendance at the services, was converted, and she made a confession that she had fired her sister-in-law's clothes after first saturating them with coal oil, and then watched her burn to death. The confession was made to the minister and several other members of the church, and it was brought before the grand jury.

Mrs. Johnson is about 40 years old and has two daughters, aged 12 and 16 years respectively. She was arrested Saturday and lodged in jail and an indictment of first degree murder stands against her.

IT WAS A FIZZLE.

Not One-Tenth of the Expected People Came.

Woodsdale Island Park, Sept. 12.—There was no incident on the train which bore Reid and McKinley and the reception committee and Lincoln club committee to this place Saturday. Shortly after leaving Cincinnati the party was joined by Gov. Foraker, who was given a warm greeting by the candidate.

Mr. Reid at once plunged into a talk with the real republican leader of Ohio. On arrival at Woodsdale the party with ladies was entertained at dinner in the club house, and right afterward the speaking began.

In point of numbers the meeting was a failure. In fact, there were about 2,500 people here, but most of them were voters. President Squire, of the Ohio State league, was made president of the meeting and made a speech, which had evidently been prepared for the advertised crowd of 20,000 people.

He had respectful attention, however, and was followed by ex-Congressman Allen, of Michigan, in a characteristic witty speech. Mr. Reid looked surprised at the smallness of the meeting compared with the promises made when invited.

EIGHT THOUSAND IDLE.

Coal Mining Dissensions Reach a Crisis at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 12.—Nearly 8,000 miners in the Pittsburg river coal district, including the mines along the Youghiogheny and Monongahela rivers, have been notified of a reduction of one-half cent a bushel for mining.

Another order from the operators is to close all the mines. The men are members of the United Mine-Workers' union, organizers from Columbus who spoke all languages having been sent here for that purpose.

The operators have big stocks on hand and boats and many barges ready for shipment south. The lower markets are overstocked and a strike might benefit the operators financially for the present.

The operators say they want to get on the same footing with the railroad shippers and operators of the Kanawha region, who have been paying one-half cent less a bushel for digging.

The Kanawha people are also 250 miles nearer Cincinnati and have no lockage to pay to a private corporation like the Monongahela Navigation company.

BLACK DIPHTHERIA AT COLUMBUS.

Columbus, O., Sept. 12.—A child died of black diphtheria at 115 West Naghten street Saturday, after a few hours' illness, and much uneasiness is felt in consequence. The house is quarantined, clothing burned and a thorough disinfection has been ordered by the city board of health.

AN OLD MAN'S DARLING.

THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE

Was Worked to the Queen's Taste

By Baker, the Columbus Man.

Guests Handsomely Entertained by the Toledo Cycling Club—Toledo's Champion.

Fully 3,000 people witnessed the bicycle races at the exposition grounds Saturday afternoon, and the interest and enthusiasm was at fever heat.

There were several reasons why the members of the Toledo Cycling club and their friends should be anxious and excited over these races. In the first place, the Toledo cyclers had entire charge of the races and the entertainment of the visitors, and again, the championship of Toledo was to be decided.

Frank Rigby was determined not to give up his laurels, and he not only held his own, but won fresh honors, though the most valuable prizes were won by A. L. Baker, of Columbus, he winning two $200 pneumatic wheels, a $50 gold watch, a handsome gold medal and a carving set. Mr. Rigby won a Dauntless pneumatic, a Kirkpatrick saddle and a gold medal.

The first race was the one-mile novice, for which the prizes were: First, dress suit coat, $20, J. N. Mackett; second, fishing outfit, Whitaker & Kirk; third, $15 clock, Woodson Spice company, Johnson taking first prize, Baker second and Rigby third.

The boys' half-mile safety was for the following prizes: First, $40 24-inch safety, Collins & Hickox; second, Garford $5 saddle, Chapman Hardware company; third, Yale lock, chain and bell, C. W. Munson.

The one-mile safety was for the championship of Toledo, the following gentlemen being entered: L. G. Colton, G. L. Chapman, H. C. Brigham, Crank Collins, F. B. Rigby and O. P. Bernhart. The prizes for this race were: First, gold medal; second, one year's dues; third, six months' dues, the winners being Rigby first, Brigham second, Collins third.

The prizes offered for the one-mile safety, open, were: First, King of Scorchers, Toledo Exposition company; second, fishing outfit, Colton & Hickox, and plush rocker, Stolberg & Parks; third, pair opera glasses, Chas. Hanner, the winners being, first, Baker, of Columbus; second, F. F. Rough, South Bend; third, Brown, of Cleveland.

The prizes for half-mile safety, open, were: First, Crescent pneumatic, $100, Western Wheel company and Chapman Hardware company; second, Mackintosh coat, Toledo Rubber company; third, patent leather shoes, Wachter & Schnetzler, and pair cut glass bottles, R. C. Spohn. The winners were: Baker, first; Lown, second; Rough, third.

The one-mile safety was for Toledo men only, and the following prizes were won: First, Dauntless pneumatic, Toledo Bicycle, Frank Rigby; second, one pair Columbia pedals, Emil Grah; pneumatic saddle, A. U. Betts & Co., J. G. Swindeman; third, dozen photographs, C. L. Lewis, W. A. Parker. The five-mile handicap, open, was perhaps the most exciting race of the day. The prizes were: First, Yost pneumatic, Yost Manufacturing company; second, shot-gun, Exposition company; third, silver water set, W. E. Cawood; fourth, banjo, D. M. Caughling; special time prize, gold medal, Toledo Cycling club. The first prize was won by W. Lown, La Porte, Ind.; the second by C. C. Handy, Wauseon, O.; the third by O. W. Nisewonger, Ocan, O.; A. L. Baker, of Columbus, taking the special prize.

For the three-mile lap race, the prizes were: First, gold watch, Exposition company; second, clock, Overman Wheel company and Chapman Hardware company; third, set of books, Brown, Eager & Hull, and inkstand, J. J. Freeman, Baker took the first prize, Brown second and Lown third.

After the races the wheelmen were entertained at the Toledo Cycling club's rooms, there being music, speeches, an athletic exhibition, and an elegant spread. The prizes were also distributed, President Keller making a pleasing address. The guests departed at a late hour, voting cyclers' day a huge success.

CLOSE TO A FIGHT.

Consul Hanna Refused to be Robbed.

Placed Under Arrest and an Attempt Made to Get Money Out of Him.

New York, Sept. 12.—A cable to the Herald from Panama says that General Pepper, on September 3, received orders from Caracas to squeeze a large sum of money from the merchants at La Guayra. General Echeverria, his adjutant, summoned the leading merchants and when they had assembled told them they were prisoners until they paid in sums ranging from $500 to $2,000.

The German, Dutch, Swedish, Norwegian, Belgium, Brazillian, Argentine and Costa Rican consuls and American Vice Consul Golding, agent of the Red D steamers, were also arrested. An appeal was made to American Consul Hanna, who saw the French, Spanish and British consuls and together with them formally demanded the release of the other consuls and the foreign warships.

Pepper hesitated, the foreign warships got up steam, the Venezuelan forces beat to arms and for a while the situation was serious.

Mendoza, hearing of the state of affairs, telegraphed from Caracas for Pepper to comply. He then called in his lieutenants and resigned the dictatorship, proclaiming Guillermo Tell Villegas Pulido as president and member of the federal council.

Pulido at once began the forming of a cabinet, leaving Mendoza out. It is thought Mendoza will attempt to escape with his booty from pillage and forced loans. Consul Hanna is generally condemned for the firm stand he took in behaf of the imprisoned men.

MENDICANTS OF HARLEM.

By Low Tricks They Beguile Alms From the Charitable.

Harlem is becoming infested with beggars, more or less intrusive, three of whom have been plying their trade long enough to have become familiar to most Harlemites, says the New York Sun.

A sturdy blind man is probably the least obtrusive of the lot. His regular beat is One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, between third and Fifth avenues. He dresses in a faded suit, which is whole and comfortable, but it gives a first impression that the wearer has been exposed in it to the rigors of many inclement seasons. This makes it valuable as stock in trade, because the many who drop pennies and nickels in the blind beggar's outstretched palm do so on the impulse of the moment and hurry away, wondering what made them so suddenly generous to so well fed and well preserved a mendicant. He attracts attention by muttering songs in a doleful voice, which is as absolutely tuneless as the songs he sings. No one has yet endured his singing long enough to find out what his songs are, but "mother" and "home" and "my boy" crop out at intervals, and lead the passer-by to believe the topic to be of the pathetic order.

He has a rival in the person of another blind man with a horribly deep and obtrusive voice and some queer disease, real or assumed, which causes him to twist his head to one side and blurt out the more impressive portions of his songs with wretched grimaces and contortions, which fairly screw coin out of the pockets of his hearers, if only to put a momentary stop to his distressed performance. He does not spend much time in giving thanks, and the purchased relief is of the shortest duration. When business grows dull he doubles up with another singer who has an equally voluminous voice and a pair of good eyes. The latter became a positive necessity in the business owing to the fact that the two singers succeeded in waking up the officer on post to the point of ordering them to move on at frequent intervals. They rarely move out of earshot.

The least obtrusive beggar of the lot is an attenuated little old woman clad in rusty black, who day after day has seated herself on the curbstone, generally at the corner of Madison and One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street. She dresses in a suit of rusty black, the age of which can scarcely be guessed at. No one has ever been able to see what her face is like, because she doubles herself up over a wheezy little organette with a shawl thrown over her head, its folds falling down far below over her stooping shoulders. It makes one's back ache just to look at the thin, bent figure, and many nickels drop into the tin cup on the organette Her benefactors are generally women. The rattle of the coin in the cup causes a bony hand to shoot out from the folds of the shawl and clutch the offering, while the giver unsuccessfully endeavors to catch a glimpse of the face of the woman. She mutters something, supposed to be thanks, and grinds a few doleful notes out of the organette in acknowledgment.

Some pet phrases have been imported from Chatham square to the neighborhood of Harlem bridge by some of these beggars. "Say, friend," is heard oftenest from rough looking fellows, who hope their appearance will lead the hearer to part with a nickel, which will be spent for a drink if he does. If the passer don't respond with a coin at once, but waits long enough, he will have a chance to listen to a tale of the need of a night's lodging and no coin to pay for it. The younger members of the begging fraternity are also numerous in the neighborhood of the bridge. They get in their plea in the most direct way, but in a manner likely to impress a stranger with the idea that lodgings are remarkably cheap in Harlem. "Gim'me 2 cents for a night's lodgin'," is their stereotyped salutation, delivered in a doleful whine, calculated to make the hearer hand over some pennies in the fear that he will hear it again if he doesn't comply.

Last week two new mendicants appeared in Harlem, a blind man with a hoarse voice and a silent companion with a full complement of eyes, who leads him about. The precious pair established a route in East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, and they visited every store along it.

"Help the blind," the blind man cries, as he gets within range of a shopkeeper or his customers. "You should always help the blind," if his appeal is not responded to at once.

Altogether the Harlem beggars are getting too numerous for the comfort of self-supporting citizens, and the police interfere with them far too little.

A ghastly tragedy occurred at the town of Mercasliano, in Naples, where a rich young man by the name of Antonio Saccone, became ardently enamored of a beautiful peasant girl, whose golden locks had won for her the sobriquet of "the blonde Madonna." Saccone offered the maiden his name and vast estates, but she spurned him as she had already promised to marry a peasant on his estate. Saccone thereupon determined to discharge his rival. A quarrel arose, and the rivals met armed with revolvers. Three shots were fired, and the peasants were seriously wounded. The blonde Madonna, hearing of the strife, also armed herself with a revolver and quickly arrived upon the scene. Here a dreadful tragedy was enacted. Antonio fell lifeless from a bullet fired from his adversary's revolver, but had just before accidentally wounded the heroine of the tragedy. The young peasant lover still remained unhurt, but the blonde Madonna, through her inexperience with the weapon, shot her lover through the heart.

The anecdotes of Thomas Carlyle seem endless, and unfortunately many only testify to a recklessness of statement that approaches brutality. The Pall Mall Gazette prints the following as a tolerably fresh anecdote: "Walking one day with Carlyle, W. Bell Scott (when resident in Chelsea) gave somewhat exuberant expression to his admiration to Shelley. Carlyle at once opposed to this an estimate of the poet that was the reverse of flattering. Stamping on the pavement, he exclaimed: 'This Shelley of your was a scoundrel, and he ought to have been hanged.' Bell Scott felt deeply chagrined, and the rest of the walk was taken in solemn silence. Before the two old men parted at Scott's door, however, Shelley's censor had begun to relent, and hardly half an hour had elapsed when there came round from Cheyne Row to Scott's house the bust of Shelley as a peace offering. Carlyle saw that he had wounded a gentle spirit by his trenchant criticism, so he presented the painter-poet with a bust of his hero."

Humphries K. Cooke and Elantheros H. Cooke, of Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, will take notice that upon the 6th day of August, A. D. 1892, Emery D. Potter, Jr., filed his petition in the court of common pleas within and for Lucas county, Ohio, against the said Humphries K. Cooke and Elantheros H. Cooke and one Rush R. Sloan, setting forth that said plaintiff has the legal title to and is in the peaceable possession of the following described real estate, viz: Lots forty-eight (48) to sixty (60) both inclusive; lots eighty-three (83) to ninety-three (93) both inclusive; also lot ninety-five (95), all in Sloan, Ashley & Bassett's addition to Toledo, Ohio; also an undivided 1-6 of all that part of lots 20 and 21 in River Tract six (6) of the United States Reserve of Twelve Miles Square, Toledo, Lucas county, Ohio, not included in said Sloan, Ashley & Bassett's addition aforesaid.

That said defendants set up or claim some interest or estate in said premises, adverse to said estate and interest of said plaintiff and asks that their said claims be determined to be null and void as against said plaintiff's said title and that plaintiff's title thereto may be quieted. The said Humphries K. Cooke and Elantheros H. Cooke are notified that they are required to appear and answer said petition on or before the 3rd Saturday after the 17th day of September, A. D. 1892.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Affie E. Hitchens occurred yesterday afternoon. Impressive services were held at the First Presbyterian church. The deceased was the secretary of Woodbridge Union of the W. C. T. U., and the members attended in a body.

Presque Isle closed for the season yesterday and the Pastime will lay up. Manager Quale and his assistants have labored diligently to make the beautiful island attractive for the people of Toledo and neighborhood, and they have been eminently successful.

New millinery—new millinery—at Bailey & Dwight's, corner Adams and Superior.

To-morrow evening the orphans of St. Vincent's home give an entertainment at Wheeler's opera house, for the benefit of the institution. An elegant program has been prepared, and it is hoped Toledoans will show their appreciation of the good accomplished by this worthy organization by filling the house.

It surely will be not a safe plan for Toledo to enforce the unit rule in the selection of congressional delegates, for it will surely make dissatisfaction that will be hard to heal. Every man should be allowed what strength he has, for otherwise there will be breaches made that will be hard to heal.—Bowling Green Tribune.

Republican county central committee will organize to-morrow afternoon, immediately at the close of the congressional convention. There are three candidates for chairman: Frank H. Tanner, of the First ward; Frank W. Rickenbaugh, of the Second, and J. W. Kerr, of Monclova. To-day it looks like Chairman Rickenbaugh.

A horrible murder occurred at Amherstburg last evening. Allison Veney, well known on the lakes and cook on the steamer C. B. Lockwood, went to his home in an apparently happy frame of mind and cut his wife's throat from ear to ear with a penknife. He then attempted to stab himself. He is now in jail awaiting trial. Mrs. Veney was his second wife, and said to be a very nice woman. No reason is given for the crazy deed.

Michael Konezal, a Pole residing at 1135 Nebraska avenue, was arrested this noon on the charge of cutting with intent to kill. The fracas occurred Saturday night and several arrests will be made.

A party of emigrants hailing from Philadelphia reached Toledo Saturday and got scattered about the city, causing some alarm. They were located, however, after a time and found to be all right. New York, Philadelphia and other points have strict quarantines, but they let the emigrants pass through in two days after they arrive, just the same.

The New St. Clair Bridge.

The Consolidated electric cars are now running over the St. Clair street bridge, the first car going over Saturday night. There is considerable complaint about the exceedingly lofty elevation of the structure.

Mr. Carr Steps Down.

Ex-President Carr, of the First National stepped down and out Saturday. He will take it easy for a few days and will go into the Ketcham National about the first of the week. Mr. Nearing said this morning that Mr. Carr's successor would not be appointed for the present.

Gas Trustees Meet.

The regular weekly meeting of the gas trustees is being held this afternoon. The matter of pumps is the principal topic under consideration. The proposition of the sinking fund trustees accepted a week ago will be supplemented, it is understood, by funds from other sources.

Lower Town Property Sold.

On Saturday afternoon Irving B. Hett sold 106 feet on Superior street between Galena and Buckeye, for $3,652.

The property was divided up among purchasers as follows: H. L. LaPlunt, 36 feet; Mrs. Julia Scharf, 30 feet; Frederick Sonnenberg, 33 feet; Joseph Ackenberg, 33 feet; Joseph Larue, 34 feet.

Infirmary Barn Burned.

A barn containing hay and straw to about the value of $300 was destroyed by fire at the county infirmary last night. The department at the infirmary and the asylum prevented the fire from spreading to the adjoining buildings after a hard fight. The loss is covered by insurance.

Lawyers Off for Monroe.

The personal injury cases growing out of the tunnel disaster on the Lake Shore road at this point last winter will be taken up in common pleas court at Monroe, beginning to-morrow. The first is that of Conway against the two roads. Attorneys Harvey Scribner, Frank Hurd, J. D. Ford and Emery D. Potter, jr., who are interested in the cases will leave for Monroe this evening.

Wood County on the Ground.

Wood county's congressional delegation arrived at the Boody house at noon and are in a respectful but firm way pressing the candidacy of Dr. Lincoln and will give him a solid backing all the way through. They say they feel kindly toward all the candidates, but that if they will but give them Dr. Lincoln they will send up such a majority from old Wood for him as will cause the district to feel glad of their choice.

Lupton is Found.

Policeman Lance A. Lupton disappeared from the force and the city suddenly and mysteriously a week or so ago. He had lived at 919 Seneca street. Since his departure a steady line of creditors have been besieging the place in hopes of finding some one at home.

Lupton was at one time a member of the Salvation Army, but he couldn't have been a very ardent brother, or else he got easily over it. He owed Adams & Co., and Hood Bros., on Adams street, quite a sum each, and they sent a detective to hunt Lupton up.

Yesterday he was arrested at Jackson, Michigan, and scared into telling where the goods he had purchased were. They will be recovered by the firms interested. Lupton is being held until further orders.

Judge Millard Refused to Interfere.

Habeas corpus proceedings were established in probate court last Saturday afternoon by T. J. Corkery, to get possession of Willie Wright.

The boy referred to was arrested some time ago, with a number of others, charged with stealing wheat from freight cars in East Toledo. In police court the Wright boy was sentenced to the reform school at Lancaster. The applicant for the release of Wright sets up that the parents of the boy had not been duly notified, and that the police court had not authority to sentence the boy to the reform farm.

Judge Millard refused to release the prisoner, holding that the probate court has no jurisdiction to review a court of equal jurisdiction.

Poisoned by Vaccine Virus.

James A. Haskins, a sailor and son of the master of the schooner C. H. Davis, which arrived in port from Saginaw this morning, called on the marine surgeon in a bad condition.

Ten days ago at Saginaw, he was vaccinated under the law, which was set forth some time since, requiring all marine surgeons to vaccinate crews on all incoming boats.

Mr. Haskins has always been a well, strong man until this occurrence, since which time he has gradually broken out in ugly sores and one would think to look at him that he had a bas case of smallpox. They have made their appearance on his hands, arms, chest and face. The virus for this purpose is supposed to come direct from Washington.

Congressman Donovan.

Sunday's Enquirer has the following special from Washington, relative to Hon. D. D. Donovan, congressman from the adjoining district:

Hon. D. D. Donovan has been kept in Washington nearly all the time since the adjournment of congress, looking after department work and other business incidental to the life of a congressman. He left for his Ohio home to-day. Mr. Donovan has been renominated, and if his work in the campaign is as effective as his work in congress has been, his re-election will be by a handsome majority and the state and county ticket is this section will reap much benefit from his popularity. Mr. Donovan is not given to celebration of himself, but he is an excellent, practical congressman, constantly on the watch-tower for the interests of his constituents. He commands the respect and friendship of members from all the states, and that is a powerful leverage when a congressman wants to get anything through.

Wedding Chimes.

A pretty little romance, the particulars of which are not to be given to a curious public, culminated last evening as a love story should, with the wedding of the hero and heroine, and the prediction of numerous friends that they will live happily ever after.

The groom is Mr. Elmer F. Beach, stenographer with Moore & Moore, one of the leading law firms of Detroit, Mich., and the bride, Miss Edith Ementa Minker, is a lovely young lady, whose home is, or rather was, in Centralia, Wash. She made the long trip alone, arriving in Toledo, the latter part of last week, and the marriage was solemnized last evening at the home of her aunt, Mrs. J. F. Harris, lower Superior street, by Rev. Dr. Fish, of St. John's M. E. church, in the presence of a few intimate friends and near relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Beach will make their home in Detroit, and departed for that city this morning, carrying with them the best wishes and congratulations of hosts of friends.

Al Baker's Wonderful Record.

The Columbus Press of yesterday has the following relative to Al Baker, who participated in the bicycle contests on Saturday:

Al Baker, of this city, scored a wonderful victory on the Toledo Cycling tournament Saturday. He was sent there as a representative of the Columbus club, and a telegram received from his brother, Con Baker, had the effect of making the members of the club here very jubilant. Mr. Baker was eligible to only five races, and won four of these. It would seem that nothing will be able to hold him off the world's record. His speed is doubly remarkable when it is known that this is only his second season at contesting for prizes. Mr. Baker came out second in the one-fourth mile open; took the special time prize of a bold medal in the five-mile handicap; first prize (King of Scorchers bicycle) in the mile open; the $50 gold watch offered in the three mile lap; Crescent pneumatic safety, in the half-mile open. Out of $1,000 in prizes Mr. Baker performed the wonderful feat of capturing $400 of them.

Local Labor Notes.

Everything is very quiet in labor circles just now, the excitement occasioned by the great demonstration having abated, and little besides routine business is transacted at the union meetings.

At the meeting of Typographical union, No. 63, yesterday afternoon, two new members were initiated, and the regular business of the union disposed of.

The cigarmakers meet this evening.

The Metal Polishers hold a meeting to-night.

Painters' union, No. 7, meets at Clarke's hall to-morrow night.

The salesmen meet at Elks' hall to-morrow evening.

Barbers' union, No. 5, meets Tuesday evening.

The Building Trades council meets this evening at Tinners' hall.

The Bricklayers meet to-morrow evening.

The Stationary engineers and German carpenters held meetings for the transacting of routine business Saturday evening.

Benefited by a Clerical Error.

Last week's Cincinnati Law Bulletin has the following paragraph, which will be interesting to Toledoans:

Taylor Moore, of Lucas county, who was released from the penitentiary by expiration of sentence last week, escaped with a three months' term instead of the three years' to which he was sentenced. His case exhibits perhaps the most striking illustration of the legal effect of a clerical error of any which has ever happened in the history of the penitentiary. The newspapers were led into the error of stating that Moore's sentence was the shortest on record in this state, being three months, or one-quarter of a year only.

The facts are that he was in reality sentenced to serve three years for the crime of sodomy, but when the commitment papers were made out a clerical error changed the "three years" to "three months." The judge who sentenced Moore, and the prosecutor who secured his conviction, visited the penitentiary last week in the effort to have the error corrected, but Warden James could not legally hold a man longer than his commitment papers required. Nor could he allow those papers to be changed after having once been placed in his possession. Thus Moore, profiting by the clerical error, was received June 15, and released August 30.

Twelfth Ohio Cavalry.

The annual re-union of the Twelfth Ohio Cavalry will be held at DeGraff, Logan county, O., September 28 and 29. The Twelfth was one of the finest regiments sent out from Ohio during the war; one although not organized until in 1863, it was composed very largely of men who had previously served in other commands, and were accustomed to active service in the field. As soon as organized, armed and mounted, the regiment went immediately into the field and rendered gallant service until the close of the war, taking part in a number of severe engagements and raiding expeditions. This regiment made the longest and most successful raid of the war, being 68 consecutive days in the saddle without drawing a government ration or seeing a union flag except the one they carried, during which raid the regiment traveled over 2,000 miles and through six different states, and were successful in every undertaking. At Marion, Va., December 18, 1864, the regiment made a gallant and successful charge on the enemy, a picture of which has been painted by Edgar S. Cameron, of Chicago, an artist of ability who has given much attention to pictures of battle scenes. Capt. W. W. Myers, of this city, was a member of that regiment.

'Pugilism and Press."

Rev. T. S. Buckingham gave a 12-minute discourse on "Pugilism and the Press" last evening, besides preaching a sermon on "The Ultimate Authority of the Christian Religion," at the Eleventh Street Church of Christ.

In regard to pugilism and the press, he spoke in reference to the lawlessness of the fight at New Orleans; that the brutal exhibition was a disgrace to American civilization, and for the authorities to permit such things is a bad augury for the future.

"Such things show a loss of respect for your laws," said he. He thought that the press of Toledo had certainly shown an admirable want of care in presenting the affair, and had gone out of their way to glorify this blackguardism. The Blade, especially, had not only given columns and pages of letter press and wood cuts, but had given the bulletins by stereopticon.

If the public press of this city were determined to cater for the saloon element, for betting men, for the blackguards, rascals and roughs of this community then the religious people would have to see what they could do about permitting such papers to come into their homes.

Newspaper men, by their enterprise, have made newspapers a necessity of our every day life, and as we cannot do without them, if we can't reform their ways, we will have to start newspapers for ourselves.

What we want to-day is not so much religious newspapers as newspapers conducted religiously.

He did not consider this discourse a violent tirade against newspapers, but a protest against the publication of offensive occurrences.

He paid a deserved tribute to newspaper men, mentioning Greeley and others, and their work, saying that they had done a great work in purifying the springs of the national life. He also mentioned that the American papers gave both sides of the question—Talmage's sermons and prize fights—but he thought that the lawlessness of prize-fighting might be mentioned with less glory.

A RAILROAD CHANGE.

The Ann Arbor Will Come Into Toledo Over the Wheeling, it is Said.

It is said that in a few days the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railroad will run its trains into Toledo over the Wheeling & Lake Erie tracks, instead of the Pennsylvania tracks.

The Ann Arbor has been much dissatisfied with regard to its terminal facilities at Toledo for some time past. The Pennsylvania yard, with three roads running into it daily, have been overcrowded.

Some few changes will have to be made before the new arrangement goes into effect, but it is said that it will be done at once.

PYTHIAN COMMITTEES

At Work in the City—Finance and Orphans' Home.

This morning the finance committee of the grand lodge of Ohio, K. P., met at the office of Grand Keeper of Records S. A. Court, in the Pythian castle, to make the semi-annual examination of the books and accounts of this office as well as that of the grand master of exchequer, Mr. E. Hitchens. The committee is composed of Gen. J. W. Greene, of Toledo, chairman; C. J. Deckman, Malvern; W. W. Gunther, Chillicothe; Loupis Black, Cleveland, and Ed C. Kuhn, Cincinnati. Grand Chancellor P. H. Dorn and Mr. Hitchens, of Cleveland, are present.

The committee on orphans' home also met at the castle to consider the question of the establishment of a home at some point in the state. The members comprising the committee are Jay L. Athey, of Cleveland, chairman; Dr. W. F. Taylor, Cincinnati; C. A. Poland, Columbus; Geo. E. Hitchcock, Akron, and M. Bartlett, Toledo.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

Fall Term Opens in The New Quarters at the Nasby.

Circuit court convened in the new court room in the Nasby building at 9 o'clock this morning.

A majority of the members of the bar were present, who were all glad to see each other after the long vacation.

When court convened Judge Scribner announced the appointment of Henry Kingsbury as court constable for the term; also that there would be no session next Monday and Tuesday, as the members of the court would attend the annual meeting of the circuit judges to be held at Columbus on Wednesday.

The court then proceeded to call the docket, after which some motions and other preliminary matters were disposed of. The case of George A. Chase v. Hunter, treasurer, error, No. 659, was taken up for hearing this afternoon. This will be followed by the case of McDonald and Stevens against Hunter, treasurer.

This term will end October 15.

RECEIVERS APPOINTED

For the Hotel Victory and the Electric Street Railway at Put-in-Bay.

On Saturday afternoon Judge Ricks of the U. S. circuit court at Cleveland appointed Hon. L. S. Baumgardner receiver of the Put-in-Bay Water Works, Light and Railway company, and George H. Ketcham, of this city, receiver of the Put-in-Bay Hotel company. This action was taken on the motion of Doyle, Scott & Lewis and L. G. Richardson, attorneys for J. K. Tillotson, and is the latest move of Mr. Tillotson in the game some persons have been playing to freeze him out. It is a singular coincidence that Tillotson's signal victory was won on September 10, the anniversary of Perry's victory.

The direct result of this action is to put Tillotson's antagonists to rout. In the railroad deal the action was based on the filing of a lien by the Electric Supply company of Chicago, a creditor of the road, and Tillotson steps in with a cross petition, claiming the bonds and stock now held by H. H. Warner and J. P. Carrothers as his property, as they have violated the contract in not meeting payments as agreed. Judge Ricks granted an injunction restraining them from disposing of the bonds or stock, and the papers were served on Mr. Carrothers at the Boody house Saturday night by a United States deputy marshal.

Saturday night at 11 o'clock J. K. Tillotson, L. S. Baumgardner, C. T. Lewis, L. G. Richardson and F. M. Ohl representing Receiver Ketcham, left on the steamer Visitor for Put-in-Bay, and on Sunday Receiver Baumgardner took possession of the railroad property, cars, power house, etc. He immediately ran the cars up to Hotel Victory and ordered the road shut down for the winter. The deputy sheriffs and constables reluctantly gave up possession, but one of them remarked, "We expected all along Tillotson would come out ahead sooner or later."

Mr. Ohl took possession of Hotel Victory in the name of Receiver Ketcham, and the party returned to Toledo last night on the City of Toledo.

BY WAY OF SANDUSKY.

Gossip Relative to Hotel Victory and the Railroad.

The Bee this afternoon received the following special dispatch from Sandusky:

George E. St. John, of Port Clinton, who with H. C. Post, of this city, are among the principal creditors of Hotel Victory, said to-day that both are amply secured for all their stock in that company. The Phoenix Furniture company has been paid to within $40,000 of their claim, and St. John and Post over $50,000 in stock. The furniture company has first mortgage and St. John and Post have a second mortgage of $50,000 and 148 lots in Victory park worth $300 each. Mr. St. John leaves for Toledo Monday and expects, in connection with H. H. Warner, of Rochester, to gain control of the property and displace Tillotson. The hotel and electric railroad company, which Warner now owns, will be consolidated. Post and St. John also hold contracts of the Toledo & Sandusky Railroad company's for gross receipts of Put-in-Bay business for the summer. Weaver offers to pay $25,000 for the Hotel next season if it is finished, and this contract will probably be closed.

LATE MARKETS.

In New York October wheat closed at 89 1-2c and December at 82 3-4c, a loss of 1-2c. September corn at 56 1-8c, a loss of 3-8c. October at 55 1-8c, a loss of 7-8c. October oats at 34c, a loss of 1-4c.

In Chicago October wheat closed at 74 1-8c, a loss of 1-2c. December at 76 1-4c, a loss of 5-8c. September corn at 47c, and October at 47 5-8c, a loss on each of 1c. October oats at 34c, a loss of 1-4c.

In Toledo the trading in wheat futures has been a little more active than on Saturday, but it has been a dull day in the speculative department of the trade. The early sales indicated firmness and the prices were a little better, but it was soon lost and closing prices show a loss on September of 1-4c, October 1-4c, December 3-8c, May 3-8c. On the call September wheat sold at 76 7-8c, October at 77 1-8 to 77 1-4c, December at 79 3-8c. On the regular board September sold at 76 5-8c, and closed at 76c, October at 76 3-4c, closing at 76 1-4c. December at 79c, closing at 78 1-2c., May at 84 1-4c, closing at 83 3-4c.

Cash wheat was about as active as usual, and a number of cargoes were sold to eastern dealers, but this is a usual occurrence. No. 2 soft sold at 76 1-2 to 76c, a loss of 1-4c; No. 3 soft at 68 1-4 to 68 1-2c, closing at 68c; No. 4 soft at 61c; rejected No. 1 at 64c; No. 2 at 50 to 51c; smutty at 60 to 68c; weavily at 50c; wheat and rye at 56c; rye and wheat at 62c.

Corn—No. 2 at 68c; No. 3 at 47 1-2c; No. 2 white at 50c; No. 2 yellow at 49c.

Oats—No. 3 white at 33c.

Rye—No. 2 at 60c; September at 60c, and at close sellers at 59 1-2c; No. 3 at 50c.

Clover seed.—On the call October sold at $5 80; November at $5 75. On the regular board an active business was reported and prices were a shade better. Prime for cash at $5 85; September at $5 80; October, $5 80 to $5 85; November at $5 75; No. 2 at $5 65 to $5 70, closing $5 65.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.

The democratic voters of Lucas county are hereby notified to assemble in convention at Druid Hall, Toledo, on Saturday, September 17th, 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., to nominate candidates for the November election, as follows:

County Commissioner,
County Recorder,
County Surveyor, and
Infirmary Director;

And to select delegates to the Congressional and Judicial conventions.

In the several wards of the City of Toledo primaries will be held, and in the Townships outside of Toledo mass caucuses will be held.

At the primaries in the city and the caucuses in the townships, delegates to the county convention will be elected and also one member of the county central committee from each ward and township.

The township caucuses will be held at three o'clock p. m. on Thursday, September 15.

The city ward primaries will be held between the hours of 4 and 8 o'clock p. m. at places to be hereafter designated by the ward committeemen, the announcement of which places will be made in the Bee.

The democrats present at the opening of the polls at the primaries in the several wards will select two judges and one clerk to receive the ballots and record the name of each person voting, and when the polls are closed they will certify the result to the Chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee.

The wards and townships are entitled to one delegate for each 50 votes cast for Gov. Campbell in November, 1891, and one additional delegate for fraction over 25 votes, as follows:

	Vote.	Delegates.
First Ward	786	16
Second Ward	508	10
Third Ward	617	12
Fourth Ward	699	14

In his pugilistic prosperity Champion Corbett remembered his parents by sending them a present of $10,000. That's the kind of a son to have.

Is this lavish disbursement of money by Ashley for the nomination to congress one feature of the profit-sharing, about which we have read so much?

The new insane asylum is located in Stark county and it is freely intimated that Gov. McKinley lobbied the location through the board of selection, the board having been appointed by himself. It looks much that way.

The Norwalk Chronicle, a stalwart republican newspaper, refuses to support Johnson, the republican andidate for congress. The Chronicle will render valuable assistance to Hon. M. D. Harter.

A Missouri district breaks the convention record by nominating a candidate for congress on the 5645th ballot. 'Twould be a shame to defeat a man at the polls after such a hang-on race in convention.

The Vermont election shows a falling off in the republican vote of nearly ten thousand over the result in 1888, while the democratic vote holds its own. This is evidence of republican apathy that can not be very encouraging to Mr. Harrison's managers.

The Boston Herald refers to Hon. M. D. Harter as one of the ablest financiers in congress, one of the leaders to be trusted with a long tenure of office. This seems to be the way the people in his district feel, and it is probable he will be re-elected this fall.

Congressman Breckinridge has made a study of the political situation in several states the past few weeks and finds Cleveland stronger with the people to-day than he was in June. Everywhere there is a quiet determination to vote in November for a change in the administration of government.

In the republican convention on Saturday Charley Persistent Griffin succeeded in capturing just four delegates and with them he can hold the balance of power in the event of a dead-lock. There may yet be hope for our gladiatorial champion. Here's hoping Griffin will get there to-morrow.

The New York Herald, with commendable enterprise, communicated with nearly all the United States consuls in Europe on the subject of cholera, past and present, including sanitary conditions and regulations. The responses were prompt, and, examined as a whole, show that there is little danger of a general epidemic of cholera on the continent. Generally, sanitary conditions are good, and the regulations for prompt attack of the scourge on appearance give assurance of immunity from the spread of the disease. This is encouraging news, though there is every reason for redoubling effort in this country to prevent the introduction of the disease. There is an element of reckless criminality in the bringing of boat loads of people from infected districts that ought to be guarded against hereafter by international regulations.

A REPUBLICAN FIZZLE.

For weeks past the state has been flooded with information about the grand opening of the republican campaign to take place on Woodsdale Island, near Cincinnati. The whole influence of the State League of Republican clubs was invoked to boom it. The railroads joined in furnishing excursion trains at reduced fares. Whitelaw Reid was advertised as an attraction. McKinley and Foraker were also advertised to scintillate the proceedings. It was to be an affair that would thunder all over the country and shake up politics generally.

It was held last Saturday.

It was a fizzle, so admitted by the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. There were 2,500 people present, all told. The speakers were there, but even the presence of Reid, McKinley and Foraker did not inspire the crowd with confidence. The Ohio republican situation is deplorable, but no worse here than in other states. The fact is the candidacy of Benjamin Harrison does not enthuse the workers. They will not rally under his standard.

TAMMANY SWEARS ALLEGIANCE.

The formal adoption of resolutions of endorsement of Cleveland and Stevenson and the hearty work of Bourke Cockran, Richard Croker and other leaders of the great political organization, means a power which the republican can not overcome. It is evident that Cleveland has placated Tammany. So much, very good. There are also more hopeful signs that Senator Hill will fall in line and assume an aggressive leadership for Cleveland. This week will enable the democrats of the country to see with a clearer vision the true situation in New York, and the hope is that unity and harmony will prevail all along the line.

REPUBLICAN POLITICS.

The present campaign in this congressional district within republican lines promises to be disgraceful in detail from beginning to end.

The contest between the three Lucas candidates involves more than factional differences. That started the row, but the potentiality of money is the prime factor in Gov. Ashley's canvass. If reports be true, and they are not denied, money was lavishly used in his interest in the primaries and is to be used in the congressional convention. By reason of poor parliamentary leadership his forces nearly fell down in the county convention last Saturday, hence the necessity for extraordinary work to-day and to-morrow in Wood, Ottawa and Fulton counties. The Governor has 60 votes in his own county. He must have 38 from the outside. The confident air of his managers shows that he has recovered the situation and expects the nomination without much trouble.

The use of money is open and above board, but the Governor's friends are sowing the wind that surely will reap the whirlwind in November. Mr. Ashley will not be elected to congress from this district. The people understand his methods of old and will defeat him at the ballot box.

STRIKES AND THEIR REMEDIES.

This is the subject of a most interesting article in the current number of the Review of Reviews, the article being a comprehensive recapitulation of the findings of the Australian investigation of this question.

More and more the English speaking people have reason to look upon the Australian neighbor as a mentor in methods of local government and as the leader in social and economic investigation. The ballot system now adopted in nearly all of our states came from Australia. No doubt the same troubles and experiences worry the people of that far away country, but enough is known of their temperament to say that any disturbances of government or social relations are speedily followed with an effort and determination to find a remedy. Thus it is that we have the report of a special committee to examine into the nature of strikes and point the remedy.

The immediate cause of the investigation was the tremendous strike in New South Wales in 1890 which began with the sheep shearers and which, before it was declared off, involved nearly every trades union in the colonies and cost untold millions of loss in trade and wage.

The difference between the people of Australia and the United States is very apparent in the two treatments of such a serious situation. Here, a strike is lamented, made the subject of intense discussion for a day or a week, dropped, and little real effort made to correctly solve and permanently settle difficulties between employes and employers. There, the whole people move determinedly, in the interest of individual and government.

A royal commission on strikes was appointed, consisting of eight representatives of labor, eight of capital and Hon. Andrew Garran, L. L. D., who was made president of the board by government appointment. The report of the commission is just published and makes a volume of one thousand pages the size of the Century Dictionary. The commission proceeded with its work upon non-partisan lines, and with a determination to render a public service. The laws, customs and experiences of trade in every known country were examined and collated for ready reference. The conclusions of all efforts at voluntary and enforced settlements of strikes were compiled for review and the subject was handled from motives of best intentions toward every class of citizenship.

After thorough investigation and long discussion in detail of everything bearing upon the question the commission was able to make a report which received the unanimous approval of the commission. It will readily be seen that such a report must have immediate effect upon the industrial question in the colonies, and the commission being so thoroughly representative of the extremes of the subject their unanimous agreement must almost have the effect of law with all classes.

The commission agree that the interests of the public are paramount to those of the individual, and from this basic conclusion they point the remedy of strikes. They recommend the appointment of permanent boards of conciliation and arbitration, to be called to work any time by either party in trade dispute. When acting as a conciliatory board each side of the particular dispute shall appoint two or more representatives to serve jointly with the permanent board. The duty of the conciliators shall be to bring the disputants to an amicable agreement, if not in whole, in part, and eliminate as far as possible the minor differences. As strikes frequently begin with trifles it is believed the board of conciliation will be able in most instances to settle differences between employees and employers.

Where conciliation fails then the permanent board, appointed by law, continues to sit, without any additional membership, as a board of arbitration with power of thorough investigation and recommendation. The commission did not clothe the arbitrators with the power of legal adjudication, but believed a final report after having passed the stages of conciliation and arbitration would have such effect upon the general public as to influence the parties directly in dispute to settlement upon the basis outlined by the board.

In support of the effort to find a remedy for strikes the report of the royal commission was accepted by the colonists as a method worthy to be incorporated in the laws of the country and this has been done in New South Wales with satisfactory results. Conciliation first, arbitration second. There are double elements of fairness in the suggestion and the plan here outlined which are worthy the study of our people. Of course, back of our own increasing troubles are economic causes which must be studied, politically, and fairly and intelligently, and settled by the masses for the masses, but this feature is extraneous to the settlement of strikes, as discussed by the Australian commission to which this article refers.

BROKE ABOUT EVEN

The Hamilton-Ashley Political Contest Saturday.

Attempt of the Ashleyites to Shut Out County Delegates.

Lieutenant Southard Out-Generalled at Every Point.

Disgraceful Scenes on the Floor of the Convention.

With the Game in Their Hands the Ashley People Allow Their Opponents to Capture the Principal Committees —The Ticket.

There have been political conventions in Toledo where the pathos of a blow was considered more potent than the very subtlest eloquence.

It remained for the Republican county convention of Saturday to outrival in point of disgraceful rowdyism any assemblage, political or otherwise, that has ever met in this city.

A saloon brawl would have been peaceful and quiet itself compared with Saturday's seance.

Speakers were hooted and hissed, and at times the howls fairly shook the building.

When the Bee went to press Saturday the committee to select delegates to the congressional convention had been selected.

This was the pivotal point on which the result rested, and yet Jim Southard, who, pugilistically speaking, held the bottle for Ashley, did not see the trap into which he had been unwittingly led until the last moment.

On motion of Judge Ritchie, it will be remembered, that the committee to select delegates was to be composed of one member from each ward and township.

The innocent looking motion had passed unanimously, and yet it contained the germ of what may eventually result in Hamilton's nomination. It will serve, at least, to effectually kill off Ashley.

It was on the discovery of the fact the Ashley men had been outwitted that Southard attempted to gag the convention.

It was Napoleon who said that God was ever on the side of the heavy battalions.

He was not Saturday, and it was a battle of brains against boodle and brute force.

Such hustlers as T. P. Brown, Judge Ritchie, J. F. Kumler and J. D. Ford were not to be out-generaled by such political featherweights as Jim Southard W. . Tucker, even if the latter had the crowd.

Southard opened the ball by making a motion. He, however, introduced his motion by a stump speech, whereupon he was promptly called down by T. P. Brown, who insisted on having the motion first.

Again Jim attempted his speechmaking tactics, and again he was called to order.

He moved eventually that an informal vote be taken as an advisement for the committee in selection of delegates to the congressional convention.

John Kumler jumped to his feet, but could not be heard on account of the tremendous uproar which followed Southard's motion.

It was an attempt to gag the convention, and the Ashley howlers yelled themselves hoarse.

John Kumler made the point that the motion was out of order, inasmuch as the rules governing the convention were already adopted.

There were loud calls for the regular order of business, and Chairman Eckert was pounding the table in vain for order. He ruled that the regular order of business was next on the program.

Southard was on his feet in a moment, but he could not be heard for some time owing to the din and uproar.

Ashley heelers crowded the rear of the hall and they howled and hooted when ordered.

John Watson arose to say that if the lawyers were going to run that convention, it was time for the rest who were not lawyers to be going.

Southard attempted to speak to a question of privilege, but was called down by Col. Everett amid tumultuous shouts and cheers.

Jim managed to hold the floor, and was proceeding to present his views willy-nilly, when Judge Ritchie demanded to know "how long this kind of nonsense is going to last?"

Southard was determined to bulldoze his way through, and appealed from the decision of the chair on a point of parliamentary law.

Tucker jumped to his feet and seconded the motion to appeal.

It was now bedlam broke loose, but Tucker had the strongest lungs and managed to be heard above the din.

There were half a dozen attempting to address the chair at one time.

Chairman Eckert decided to move nearer the center of the battle, and left the platform and descended to the floor, where he held forth from a chair.

The secretary and reporters, who could not well follow him, were not in it to any great extent while the war waged.

On motion of P. B. Losee Jim Southard was given three minutes to make his little speech and his opponent five minutes in which to reply.

The question was on the appeal from the decision of the chair.

Southard dodged the issue and appealed to the party prejudices of his followers.

John Kumler spoke in reply and was followed by Judge Ritchie, who said the question was simply whether or not the chair should be sustained in inforcing a fundamental principle of parliamentary law.

During all this time the crowd howled. The Ashley men hooted and hissed at every opponent who dared to speak his piece.

A demand of the ayes and nays provoked another fight. The country delegates were not going to stay there and wrangle all day.

In the midst of the confusion Southard was understood to say that he withdrew his appeal. He would have been snowed under if he had not.

The Ashley people were now desperate and decided to force the fight on a new line.

After a conference with Tucker, Southard moved that the vote adopting the report of the committee on rules and regulations be reconsidered.

The motion provoked renewed violence and the speakers could not hear themselves talk so great was the noise.

L. W. Morris made the point that the motion was not in order on the grounds that the convention had been working under the rules for over an hour.

An uproar lasting 10 minutes followed, and the chair in vain appealed to the howling mob "to remember you are American citizens."

After a long wrangle and war of words between the leaders Southard, seeing that he was being beaten, withdrew his motion.

This was hailed with a yell of delight by the Hamiltonians, who so far had gained every point.

"It is brains not men that count," John Kumler remarked after making a very unparliamentary point, for which he was laughed and jeered at.

John attempted to make a point on the fact that Southard could not move to reconsider as he had voted with the majority in the vote. John's attempt to reverse Cushing's rules created considerable merriment, and the chair failed to sustain John's point of order.

On motion of Fred Kumler a recess of fifteen minutes was taken in order to give the committee time to report delegates to the congressional convention to be held here on Tuesday.

The committee had a red-hot session. The 15 minutes were extended to half an hour, and finally when the convention was getting about tired, the committee returned and Phil Hassenzahl reported the following very much mixed delegation:

First ward—F. L. Nichols, Robert M. Parke, Frank H. Tanner, S. W. Lott, J. M. Ashley, jr., L. J. Seek, S. S. Thorn, John Carland, Samuel Turner, Horace Merrill, Willard Baker.

The report was adopted.

Ashley claimed 66 out of the 99 delegates, but Hamilton also lays claim to a majority and says he will have 60 of the 99.

The County Ticket.

The convention now got down to county business with the following result:

For county recorder Gus Wendt got the plum on the 5th ballott by the following vote: Wendt, 147; Klag, 14; Conner, 87.

The present incumbent, Mr. J. L. Pray, was renominated by acclamation for county commissioner.

For infirmary director, George Reynolds, the present incumbent, was not in it. Following is the result: Baldwin, 25; Scott, 21; Crofts, 144; Kingsbury, 9; Reynolds, 25; Jackman, 24.

Hoffman had an easy victory for county surveyor, the vote being as follows: Connelly, 24; Wilkin, 61; Hoffman, 163.

A motion to adjourn evoked another storm and the most disgraceful scene of the convention here followed.

Even at the last hour, the Ashleyites were determined to have Slippery Jim indorsed.

Chairman Eckert in vain appealed for quiet.

It was a howling, hooting mob that surged and tossed back and forth through the heated hall.

Southard stood on a chair and shouted, but amid the clamor he could not be heard two feet away.

The chairman sat down, and for upwards of an hour he sat there looking on the most rowdyish scenes ever witnessed in this city.

Finally the word was given and the Hamiltonians left the hall in a body, followed by nearly all of the spectators, who imagined the convention had adjourned.

Jim then called his bodyguard of A. P. A.'s around him and passed the following resolutions:

Resolved, That this convention requests the delegates to the congressional convention to present the name of J. M. Ashley to the district convention as the choice of Lucas county and we hereby so instruct them, etc.

Ashley's goose is cooked.

WON'T THERE B FUN?

Griffin Holds the Key to the Congressional Situation..

He Has Four Votes, Which, Given to An Outsider, Can Nominate —Some Strange Phases.

Ashley—62.
Hamilton—33.
Griffin—4.

This is the relative strength of Lucas county's three candidates in the home delegation.

Lucas county has 99 votes, and the combined outside vote is 96.

It will be readily seen that Griffin's four votes given to an outside combination will shut out Lucas county.

Griffin may have but little hopes of securing the nomination himself, but if he does not he will have something to say as to who shall be the nominee.

The postoffice is making a desperate effort to concentrate all the outside forces on one man, but it is not at all probable that such a combination can be agreed on.

Wood comes solid for Lincoln. Col. Brigham has a cinch on Fulton, and Jim Luckey holds Ottawa dead certain.

There are therefore, a series of interesting complications, from the unraveling of which may be expected an abundance of fun in to-morrow's convention.

Saturday night Ashley's lieutenants started out on a political mission that if successful may ease down the difficulties.

Ashley's emissaries have been hustling up in Fulton, and it is claimed Slippery Jim will have 14 votes from there.

Jim Ashley, jr., says the primaries cost him but $950.

To those who know the circumstances the statement bears its own denial on the face of it. It cost him more than that in one ward alone, it is claimed.

Anyway, there is fun ahead with the situation favorable to Ashley, but it is barely possible that he will be again outgeneraled as he was Saturday.

TWO NEW BLOCKS

To Be Erected on St. Clair Street, Near the Bee,

By John T. Newton, Who Thinks Such Investments Are Just the Thing.

John T. Newton is doing more just now toward making a city out of Toledo than any other man living in it.

He has faith in Toledo's future, and he is backing his faith with good solid cash.

Last evening he returned from a prolonged summer outing, and this morning he was hard at work figuring on two new blocks.

Mr. Newton has had offers from two business firms to build for them two business blocks to be based on a certain rental for a number of years.

One of these Mr. Newton has accepted, but just what the building will eventually be in the matter of size it will take some time to consider. It will be a handsome block, and it will go up this fall, on St. Clair street.

The second offer has not been definitely decided upon, and Mr. Newton said to a Bee this morning that if he did accept it, it would not be erected this year, as he has more building business on hand than he can attend to.

What Toledo most needs is more business blocks, and she is going to have them eventually.

U. S. AUTHORITIES

Send Word About the Toledo Quarantine.

It Will Probably be Conducted by the Government Instead of the State—Those Arrests.

The health authorities are still at work. Four cases wherein the defendants had violated the health ordinances in one way and another. The cases of H. C. Hansen and George Hersing were continued to September 15, and Mars Nearing and J. M. Gloyd's cases were marked off the docket on the payment of costs.

The quarantine tug Farragut has been removed to the crib light as a better lookout can be kept there than up the river. August Kruse and R. A. Fisher are on watch during the day and they are relieved by two others, who keep watch all night. Quite a number of vessels were inspected yesterday, and everything was found in a clean and tidy condition. The officers seemed to take a pride in showing the inspectors about in every case.

There will probably be some changes in the inspection here. What has been already done was the work of the state. Yesterday the United States authorities notified Dr. W. H. Fisher, of this city, who is assistant U. S. marine surgeon, that he would be expected to inspect every vessel entering the port of Toledo.

Mr. Fisher telegraphed back that the state was already doing the work, and now he awaits further orders.

KILLED BY A FALLING TREE.

Caldwell, O., Sept. 12.—Winnie Woods, a young man aged 25 years and unmarried, was instantly killed near this city Saturday. He was in the act of cutting down a large tree. He failed to get out of its way when it fell and struck him, crushing him to the earth.

A SUIT FOR $15,000.

Wellsville, O., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Ben B. Smith, a highly respectable woman living at Calcutta, a few miles from this place, has brought action for a suit for slander against James L. Ainsley, of the same vicinity, for $15,000.

TOLEDO AT THE REUNION

The Local G. A. R. Has Completed Arrangements

For the Trip to Washington—Some of Those Who Will Go by the Headquarter's Train.

The Toledo members of the G. A. R. are making active preparations for their trip to Washington this week. An unusually large number of veterans and their friends will attend the reunion this year. Some 600 will go by the headquarters train alone.

Ford and Forsyth posts will be joined by the Fairbanks post, of Detroit, and will leave here Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, going via the C., H. & D. and the Chesapeake & Ohio. Volunteer post leaves over the Pennsylvania road Friday night.

Toledo post will go on the headquarters train on the Wheeling & Lake Erie, leaving here at 7 p. m. Saturday.

James M. Hall, of Toledo, aide-de-camp on the staff of the commander-in-chief, will have the train in charge. The following past national and department officers will be on the train: John S. Kountz, past commander in chief; W. W. Alcorn, past adjutant general; Judge D. R. Austin, past judge advocate general; Judge R. H. Cochran, past senior aide-de-camp; J. K. Hamilton, past national officer; P. H. Dowling, past department commander; Chas. Reed, past assistant adjutant general.

While it is expected that a larger number of people will go this year than last, it is not thought that the trains will be as crowded, as they will go by so many different roads and will have several days to do it in, whereas last year the whole travel had to be handled in three days.

CAPTAIN KELLY

Will Have Charge of Ann Arbor Number One.

One of the Big Transfer Barges Will be Launched This Month To Run Year Around.

One of the big transfer barges which is being built at the Craig ship yards for the Ann Arbor road, is about completed, and will be launched on the 20th of this month. The craft will be named Ann Arbor No. 1, and will sail direct from here to Frankfort, where the transfer of Ann Arbor trains across Lake Michigan to connect with a line into northern Michigan and Wisconsin will be commenced.

These boats will run the year round. They have the power to crush through three feet of solid ice at the rate of six miles an hour.

Captain Kelly, of Cleveland, has been appointed to take charge of No. 1. Mr. Kelly will select his own crew.

WAR IN AFRICA.

More Reports from the Battles in Dahomey.

Paris, Sept. 12.—From dispatches received here it is learned that the French forces in Dahomey are advancing into the interior of the country and are meeting with little oppositaion to their onward march.

A revolution has broken out at Abomey, the capital of Dahomey, and King Behanzin, the native potentate, has returned from the field in order to restore order among his disturbed subjects and to organize a plan of defense against the invading French forces. King Behanzin's uncle and eldest brother, who were the fomenters of the revolt, fled with their chief supporters upon the king's approach to the capital.

THE FIREMEN.

Brotherhood in Session in Cincinnati.

Grand Master Sargent Calls the Meeting to Order—Routine Work.

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.—The third biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen was called to order at 8 o'clock this morning by Grand Master Sargent in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The examination of credentials was followed by the roll-call of delegates, after which the various committees were appointed. This afternoon will be wholly devoted to the reading of reports of the grand officers. The grievance committee will be in session this afternoon in another part of the building.

The ladies' auxiliary will also meet this afternoon at the Gibson house with Mrs. Eugene Ball, of Stratford, Ont., president of the branch, in the chair. Speaking of the outlook of the Brotherhood, Grand Master Sargent said: "We have no reason to complain of the way we are being treated by our employers. The time is coming when ruptures between employers and employes will be things of the past."

An informal reception will be held at Music hall to-night.

STREET CAR MEN.

Important Meeting Being Held in Indianapolis.

The Men Are Taking Steps to Shorten Their Hours and Increase Their Pay.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 12.—A largely-attended convention of drivers, conductors, motormen, and other street car employes, representing many of the leading cities of the country, was called to order at noon to-day at Manshur's hall. The convention was brought about by the American Federation of Labor, of which the new organization will be a branch.

One of the participants said this morning that many efforts had been made to organize the street railway employes of the country, but that they had been successful only to a limited extent, and then mainly upon the lines of local interests. Experience had demonstrated that singly and alone such unions had almost always been defeated, and that if the street car employes were seriously inclined to disenthrall themselves from the slavery of long hours and burdensome toil, to improve their condition, and participate in some of the progress and advantages of modern life, it is essential that they should have a national organization. Little was done at the noon session, and the real business will be inaugurated this evening.

Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—The big movement of grain continues and rates were firm at 2 1-2c for wheat to Buffalo. Vesselmen say that business is in good shape and are hopeful for the rest of the week.

Among marine architects it is beginning to be a serious question if iron is not better than steel for ship-building purposes, and the cases of the old Sarah Sands, Great Britain and Great Eastern are quoted as proving that iron-plated ships, with their increased thickness and better riveting, are much stronger and more lasting than any steel-constructed vessel yet put to a breaking-up test.

Toki of Japan
Had a wonderful fan,
And a highly elaborate obe.
Lovely obe (that's sash),
Charming eye! Curling lash—
I decided to linger in Kobe.

I bought her bonbons,
Quite a couple of tons,
And melon seeds, sugared—in lacquer.
When she danced the Ko-ko
In her blue Kimono,
Against all the world I would back her.

She'd play the samsin,
Not with heathenish din,
But in melody gentle and tender—
Afterward we'd drink tea,
Toki nestled by me,
While I stroked her small fingers so slender,

Tea houses are dear,
And my check book spoke clear
That speedily I must leave Kobe.
Toki moaned and she sighed,
And vehemently cried,
And donned a lugubrious obe.

The samsin forgot,
The tea she made not,
She wore not the fair lotus flower;
She let down her hair,
Doffed her sandals—feet bare—
Prayed to Buddha for over an hour.

Just two months ago
Unexpectedly—know—
I was sent to Japan, and to Kobe,
In a tea garden gay,
Making tea—the old way,
I saw a young man—and my Toki.

A CHURCHYARD LEGEND

It was an odd place for lovers to walk, but whenever Jean Clair and Richard Wells went out together they somehow found themselves in the churchyard.

They were very humble people—he a coachman at Squire Hazel's; she ladies' maid to the Misses Hazel.

The marvel was how they had found time to court at all, but it had been found, and when there were savings enough they were to be married. This was what they talked of in the churchyard.

And this might have lasted until it melted into sober life, but for a young horse who took it into his head to run away with Mrs. Hazel and to toss her into the middle of the wayside ditch. No bones were broken, but the squire, laying the fault to Dick's driving, dismissed him on the spot.

Poor Jean cried at parting, and so did he. She gave him a purse and handkerchief, and he gave her a lock of his hair. She vowed never to forget him, and he promised to write, and so they left each other on the road, close by the gate of the graveyard.

The poor girl went back to her hair curling and doing up of laces for the Misses Hazel, and was scolded for being stupid; and Dick plodded on until he found the city, and there, just when his last penny was gone, fell in most opportunely with a rich old brewer, who wanted a coachman.

It was a good place, and so he wrote to Jean. After a while he wrote her that the brewer was dead, but that the widow intended to retain him in her service; and, finally, he didn't write at all.

Jean fancied accident, sickness, death—all but the truth. How was she to guess, poor soul, that the brewer's widow had taken a wonderful notion to her handsome young coachman?

At first he refused to think of it. Then there was no harm thinking. Then thoughts of the golden glitter were too splendid to resist, and the brewer's widow hooked her fish.

So Jean watched and wept, and the brewer's widow took off her widow's cap and went into mixtures of purple and white by way of half mourning, and Dick began to consider himself a gentleman already, when one morning the waiter told him a young girl was asking for Dick Wells, and going into the hall he found poor Jean. She gave a little cry of joy when she saw him, but he stopped her from throwing herself into his arms, and told her the truth.

"You see money is everything in this world, Jean," he said. "It won't do to marry for love; and if I were you I'd say 'yes' to Farmer Giles. He's always wanted you."

Jean pinned her shawl, and settled her bonnet and turned on her heel. And Dick Wells soon married the brewer's widow.

The news of the wedding went down to Hazelhurst and set the people talking, and from that time every one began to notice how strangely Jean behaved. A hundred times a day they missed her, and always found her in the churchyard; by and by her tidy ways of dressing hair seemed to be lost, and the Misses Hazel were obliged to find another maid.

Jean never found another place. There was a little hut a long way from the village which no one had lived in for years; there the wretched girl betook herself.

She had her clothes, a few odds and ends of furniture and a gun.

Meanwhile Dick Wells had kept on growing more and more important. The brewer's widow had brought him more money than he hoped for, and he had gone on adding to it by shrewd speculation.

At last, seeing in a paper that Squire Hazel's property was to be sold—its master being dead—he bethought him to become its owner.

The lady of the house was nowise loth. All manner of fine things were sent down, and the news spread over the place. It was exciting news to the old people who had known Dick.

They were anxious to see him when he came down, and many could not believe that this pompous man of 50, who rolled to the gate in his splendid carriage was the curly-headed young fellow who had left on foot with tears in his eyes as he kissed Jean Blair and promised never to forget her.

Dick could hardly believe it himself. He had not expected to have old times brought back to him as they were at every turn in Hazelhurst, and somehow he could not but expect to see Jean Blair among the maids in the kitchen, or to hear her singing on the stairs as she used to sing in the old days when he courted her. No one had told him of her fate, and he did not know what had become of her.

They had been in Hazelhurst a month, and one day he found himself in the churchyard.

He sat there thinking and thinking all through the sunny afternoon, and still when the sun went down and the moon arose in the evening sky.

It was a strange thing, after so many hard cold years, to be melted now as he was—to be so sorry for the pain he had given his sweetheart and hope she had not felt it long.

Between the moon and himself lay a high bank with a fringe of tall grass and brambles, black and feathery, against the brilliant background. Once waiting for Jean, he had seen her coming that way to meet him, and she had stopped on the very bank to kiss her hand to him.

A moment more and a tall, gaunt figure with a gun, stood on the bank and looked at him. It was the wildest object ever seen in Christian land, perhaps; but Richard Wells knew in one moment who it was.

He stood up, filled with horror, and stared. She bent down and shaded her eyes with her hand.

"Ghosts in the churchyard," she said. "Ghosts! I wonder why they sit where I and Dick used to run?"

He heard the words, and with a miserable wail cried:

"Jean! Jean! It's not ghost, Jean!"

She laughed with an awful laugh.

"You can't deceive me," she said. You'd like to make me think you were Dick. I know better. What was that he said? 'Money is the thing to marry for.' No, you are a ghost, and I'll kill you."

She lifted her gun. The wretched man made no movement, and his eyes were fixed upon her with a glitter as of steel.

"Ghosts!" cried mad Jean. "One—two—three. Now I'll kill you!"

The bullet sped its way, and Richard Wells fell forward on his face without a groan.

The brewer's widow married again, of course, and Jean was frozen to death in her hut next winter, and there are none left on earth to-day who figured in our tale. But to this day the youth of Hazelhurst dread the old churchyard after dark, and the old people will tell you that whenever the moon is at her full there are to be seen two shadows walking hand in hand among the graves, and that those awful shapes are Jean and her sweetheart.—New York News.

Dr. Dareste has demonstrated that monsters and monstrosities during animal development are not the results of pathological changes in the embryo, as hitherto supposed, but modifications of the processes of organic evolution, such as bring about the difference between individuals and races in mankind.

Following in the wake of the numerous consolidations of electrical interests the Brush and Thomson-Houston Electric Light company, of Buffalo, have come to an understanding with each other and the General Electric company, and henceforth will be known as the Buffalo General Electric company. The capital stock of the new company will be $1,800,000.

A new socket for incandescent lamps has been brought out which is flexible and will admit of the lamp globe being turned in one direction or another. A spring coil forms one of the connections to the lamp base, and takes the place of the thread on the regular socket. Another novelty about the spring is a sharp point on the end which prevents unauthorized persons from removing the lamp by pressing open the spring and allows only a person carrying a cover for this point to tamper with the socket.

Thirty miles of underground electric railway similar to the City and South London line has been proposed for Berlin at an estimated expense of $10,000,000. The plans describe two central power stations, supplying current at 500 volts to 48 trains, each with its own locomotive, carrying in all 144 carriages at one time. It is proposed to run these trains at three-minute intervals, a little over half a mile apart, and at a fare of two and a half cents it is estimated that the traffic will be about five persons per car mile.

Briggs—Isn't that the same suit you had last year?

Griggs—Yes; and it's the same suit that you asked me last year if it wasn't the same suit that I had the year before.—Truth.

The New York state comptroller and treasurer have been figuring on the "strike bills." A rough estimate of the cost of giving military protection to the railroads, made in the absence of any vouchers, places the total at $450,000 in round numbers. It is estimated by the treasurer's office that there were 7,500 men in the field, and that $5 a day will cover the cost of pay and subsistence for each man. That gives an average of $45,000 per day for 10 days and makes up the sum mentioned. The comptroller's office is inclined to think the total cost will be rather more than this, as some of the troops will be kept on the ground for several days yet. As matters stand, the state authorities figure on borrowing about $300,000 to meet the emergency, and on taking the remainder of the amount from the general fund.

Mrs. Lawton, the bediamonded personage at Saratoga, wore all her diamonds at the last big ball. She is a niece of Senator Leland Stanford, and when she was married Senator Stanford gave her her choice in a wedding present. She could have $75,000 in cash or three of the diamond necklaces that belonged to the family. Mrs. Lawton chose the necklaces instead of the money. When she puts on all three of these necklaces and clasps her 12-diamond bracelets on her arms, and arrays her fingers like stalks of jeweled flowers, you can imagine how dazzling is the sight. When in this full panoply of gems Mrs. Lawton usually wears a Felix gown, for which she paid $750.

A Frenchman of title died in New York last week. He was Baron Roger de Seillere, deaf and dumb. He wandered around the earth, a comfortable fortune left by his father, a sutler in the French army and a noble of the last Napoleonic creation, enabling him to live a life of ease. On his visits to New York he could be met with at the different cafes. Unlike many deaf and dumb people, who have always a pad and a pencil convenient and are delighted to converse in this way with strangers, Roger de Seillere was uncommunicative and morose.

In all that goes to strengthen and build up the system weakened by disease and pain, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the superior medicine. It neutralizes the poisons left in the system after diphtheria and scarlet fever, and restores the debilitated patient to perfect health and vigor.

WELL AIMED.

"The prettiest shot I ever saw was made by a woman," said Mr. Lane, of Oshkosh, Wis., to a Youth's Companion writer. "I was surveying in Coles county, Illinois, in 1848, and stopped for dinner one day at the cabin of a settler named Junken. During the preparation of dinner Mr. Junken and I sat in the shade of the cabin engaged in conversation. A little tow-headed youngster, less than a year old, was playing about the yard. Suddenly we heard the sharp whir-r-r of a rattlesnake. Fifty yards away we saw a big fellow coiled ready to strike, while within three feet of it was the child, crawling straight toward it as if charmed. To call the baby away was impossible, and to reach it in time to save it was equally impossible. Spellbound the father and I watched the awful scene. An instant and the snake's head darted forward. A sharp report rang out from the cabin door, and the rattler was writhing headless in the grass. The baby was quite unharmed, though frightened a little by the loud noise of the report of the rifle. We found Mrs. Junken lying in a dead faint across the still smoking gun. It was a splendid shot to hit that snake's moving head at 50 yards."

Some time ago an eminent Cincinnati physician said: "When I began the practice of medicine a young man whose constitution was even more powerful than my own started in the practice with me. His pet theory was that a man couldn't have too much fresh air, that he wanted to have it circulate inside and outside of his body, and to that end when the rigors of winter came on he spurned thick clothing, which I insisted on wearing. If we rode together, the heaviest garment he had on was an ordinary sack coat. I wore mufflers and a great coat buttoned up to my chin. My young and ambitious partner has occupied a narrow home in the cemetery a great many years, placed there after a long and painful wrestle with consumption. He stuck to his thin clothing and became a martyr to his pet theory. I stuck to my heavy clothing when the weather demanded it, and I think the graveyard is a good many years from me still."

Advice to Mothers of Fretful Babies

828 Huron St., Toledo, O., July 17, '92.
Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED,

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever see anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced, it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

THE ROAD TO HEALTH.

Dr. Talmage's Sermon Across the Deep.

God Gives an Indemnity Bond Against all Evil to Every Man Who Asks.

London, Sept. 12.—Another busy week of Dr. Talmage's preaching tour has just ended. After conducting services before immense audiences at Swansea, Exeter and Bristol, he preached four times in Plymouth to the largest religious gatherings ever witnessed in that city.

Before leaving Plymouth, the mayor, at a public meeting at which many clergymen were present, thanked the American preacher for the great good his sermons had produced in awakening the community.

Dr. Talmage on the day of his departure was driven to the wharf and alighted at the top of the flight of stone steps down which the Pilgrim Fathers went when they embarked on the Mayflower to seek the new world. The sermon selected Sunday was entitled "The King's Highway," the text chosen being Isaiah xxxv. 8-10: "And an highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it, but it shall be for those; the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon, it shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there; and the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

There are thousands of people here this morning who want to find the right road. You sometimes see a person halting at cross-roads, and you can tell by his looks that he wishes to ask a question as to what direction he had better take. And I stand in your presence this morning conscious of the fact that there are many of you here who realize that there are a thousand wrong roads, but only one right one; and I take it for granted that you have come in to ask which one it is. Here is one road that opens widely, but I have not much faith in it. There are a great many expensive tollgates scattered all along that way. Indeed, every rod you must pay in tears, or pay in flagellations. On that road, if you get through it at all, you have to pay your own way; and since this differs so much from what I have heard in regard to the right way, I believe it is the wrong way.

Here is another road. On the other side of it are houses of sinful entertainment, and invitations to come in and dine and rest, but, from the looks of the people who stand on the piazza I am very certain that it is the wrong house and the wrong way. Here is another road. It is very beautiful and macadamized. The horses' hoofs clatter and ring, and they who ride over it spin along the highway, until suddenly they find that the road breaks over an embankment and they try to halt, and they saw the bit in the mouth of the fiery steed, and cry "Ho! ho!" But it is too late, and—crash!—they go over the embankment. We shall turn, this morning, and see if we cannot find a different kind of a road.

You have heard of the Appian Way. It was three hundred and fifty miles long. It was twenty-four feet wide, and on either side the road was a path for foot passengers. It was made out of rocks cut in hexagonal shape and fitted together. What a road it must have been! Made of smooth, hard rock, three hundred and fifty miles long. No wonder that in the construction of it the treasures of a whole empire were exhausted. Because of invaders, and the elements, and time—the old conqueror who tears up a road as he goes over it—there is nothing left of that structure except a ruin. But I have this morning to tell you of a road built before the Appian Way, and yet it is as good as when first constructed. Millions of souls have gone over it. Millions more will come.

"A highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those; the wayfaring men, though fools shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon, it shall not be found there; and the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with song and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away!"

First, this road of the text is the king's highway. In the diligence you dash over the Bernard pass of the Alps, mile after mile, and there is not so much as a pebble to jar the wheels. You go over bridges which cross chasms that make you hold your breath, under projecting rock, along by dangerous precipices, through tunnels adrip with the melting of glaciers, and, perhaps for the first time, learn the majesty of a road built and supported by government authority. Well, my Lord the King decided to build a highway from earth to heaven. It should span all the chasms of human wretchedness; it should tunnel all the mountains of earthly difficulty; it should be wide enough and strong enough to hold fifty thousand millions of the human race, if so many of them should ever be born. It should be blasted out of the "Rock of Ages," and cemented with the blood of the cross, and be liftest amid the shouting of angels and the execration of devils.

The king sent his son to build that road. He put his head and hand and heart to it, and, after the road was completed, waves his blistered hand over the way, crying, "It is finished!" Napoleon paid fifteen million francs for the building of the Simplon road, that his cannon might go over for the devastation of Italy; but our King, at a greater expense, has built a road for a different purpose, that the banners of heavenly dominion might come down over it, and all the redeemed of earth travel up over it.

Being a King's highway, of course it is well built. Bridges splendidly arched and buttressed have given way and crushed the passengers who attempted to cross them. But Christ, the King, would build no such thing as that. The work done, he mounts the chariot of his love, and multitudes mount with him, and he drives on and up the steep of heaven amid the plaudits of gazing worlds! The work is done—well done—gloriously done—magnificently done!

Still further, this road spoken of is a clean road. Many a fine road has become miry and foul because it has not been properly cared for; but my text says the unclean shall not walk on this one. Room on either side to throw away your sins; indeed, if you want to carry them along, you are not on the right road. That bridge will break, those overhanging rocks will fall, the night will come down, leaving you at the mercy of the mountain bandits, and at the very next turn of the road you will perish. But if you are really on this clean road of which I have been speaking, then you will stop ever and anon to wash in the water that stands in the basin of the eternal rock. Ay, at almost every step of the journey you will be crying out: "Create within me a clean heart!" If you have no such aspirations as that, it proves that you have mistaken your way; and if you will only look up and see the finger-board above your head you may read upon it the words: "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is death." Without holiness no man shall see the Lord; and if you have any idea that you can carry along your sins, your lusts, your worldliness, and yet get to the end of the human race, you are so awfully mistaken that, in the name of God, this morning I shatter the delusion.

Still further, the road spoken of is a plain road. "The wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein." That is, if a man is three-fourths an idiot, he can find this road just as well a if he were a philosopher. The imbecile boy, the laughing-stock of the street and followed by a mob hooting at him, has only just to knock at the gate of heaven, and it swings open; while there has been many a man who can lecture about pneumatics and chemistry, and tell the story of Faraday's theory of electrical polarization, and yet has been shut out of heaven. There has been many a man who stood in an observatory and swept the heavens with a telescope, and yet he has not been able to see the Morning Star. Many a man has been familiar with all the higher branches of mathematics, and yet could not do the simple sum, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Many a man has been a fine reader of tragedies and poems, and yet could not "read his title clear to mansions in the skies." Many a man has botanized across the continent, and yet did not know the "Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley." But if one shall come in the right spirit, asking the way to heaven, he will find it a plain way. The pardon is plain. The peace is plain. Everything is plain.

He who tries to get on the road to heaven through the New Testament teaching will get on beautifully. He who goes through philosophical discussion will not get on at all. Christ says: "Come to me, and I will take all your troubles away." Now what is the use of my discussing it any more? Is not that plain? If you wanted to go to London and I pointed you out a highway thoroughly laid out, would I be wise in detaining you by a geological discussion about the muscles you will bring into play? No. After this Bible has pointed you the way to heaven is it wise for me to detain you with any discussion about the nature of the human will, or whether the atonement is limited or unlimited? There is the road, go on it. It is a plain way.

"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." And that is you and that is me. Any little child here can understand this as well as I can. "Unless you become a little child you cannot see the kingdom of God." If you are saved it will not be as a philosopher, it will be as a little child. "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." Unless you get the spirit of the little children, you will never come out at their glorious destiny.

Still further: this road to heaven is a safe road. Sometimes the traveler in those ancient highways would think himself perfectly secure, not knowing there was a lion by the way, burying his head deep between his paws, and then, when the right moment came, under the fearful spring the man's life was gone, and there was a mauled carcass by the roadside. But, sayst my text, "No lion shall be there." I wish I could make you feel this morning your entire security. I tell you plainly that one minute after a man has become a child of God, he is as safe as though he had been ten thousand years in heaven. He may slip, he may slide, he may stumble; but he cannot be destroyed. Kept by the power of God through faith, unto complete salvation. Everlastingly safe.

The severest trial to which you can subject a Christian man is to kill him, and that is glory. In other words, the worst thing that can happen to a child of God is heaven. The body is only the old slippers that he throws aside just before putting on the sandals of light. His soul, you cannot hurt it. No fires can consume it. No floods can drown it. No devils can capture it.

His soul is safe. His reputation is safe. Everything is safe. "But," you say, "suppose his store burns up?" Why, then, it will only be a change of investments from earthly to heavenly securities. "But," you say, "suppose his name goes down under the hoof of scorn and contempt?" The name will be so much brighter in glory. "Suppose his physical health fails?" God will pour into him the floods of everlasting health, and it will not make any difference. Earthly subtraction is heavenly addition. The tears of earth are the crystals of heaven. As they take rags and tatters and put them through the paper mill, and they come out beautiful white sheets of paper, so, often, the rags of earthly destitution, under the cylinders of death, come out a white scroll upon which shall be written eternal emancipation.

There was one passage of Scripture, the force of which I never understood until one day at Chamounix, with Mont Blanc on one side and Montanvent on the other, I opened my Bible and read: "As the mountains are around about Jerusalem, so the Lord is around about them that fear him." The surroundings were an omnipotent commentary.

Still further: the road spoken of as a pleasant road. God gives a bond of indemnity against all evil to every man that treads it. "All things work together for good to those who love God." No weapon formed against them can prosper. That is the bond, signed, sealed, and delivered by the President of the universe. What is the use of your fretting, O child of God, about food? "Behold the fowls of the air; for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly father feedeth them." And will he take care of the sparrow, will he take care of the hawk, and let you die? What is the use of your fretting about clothes? Consider the lilies of the field. Shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" What is the use of worrying for fear something will happen to your home? "He blesseth the habitation of the just." What is the use of fretting lest you will be overcome of temptation? "God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it."

THE IRON HALL.

Important Meeting in the Hoosier State.

Twelve Hundred Branches Get Together and Try to Bridge Over the Difficulties.

Indianapolis, Sept. 12.—Representatives of a large proportion of the 1,200 branches of the Order of the Iron Hall are holding a secret conference today for the purpose of taking steps for the reorganization of the order.

The movement is strongly supported by Supreme Justice Somerby and the other officials of the order. Thomas Schorah, of St. Paul, one of the most earnest advocates of the organization, says that eminent lawyers have advised him that all of the legal obstacles can be cleared out of the way, and that it is proposed to show to the court that the order is not insolvent and that there is no valid reason why a receiver should have been appointed.

An effort will probably be made to secure the vacation of the receivership on the ground that there is no reason why the members should be compelled to bear so expensive a burdn.

OHIO STATISTICS.

Summary of Returns Received by the Commissioner of Labor.

Columbus, O., Sept. 12.—The commissioner of labor has received returns from the "building and trades" in 321 cities and from every county in Ohio, which shows the following results for the year ending July 1, 1892, as compared with the preceding year:

In amount of work done 411 report "no change;" 207 report a decrease, but few give per cent. of decrease; 394 report an increase ranging from 5 to 100 per cent.

In prices paid for labor 776 report "no change;" 77 report a decrease; and 161 report an increase.

In cost of material 736 report "no change;" 197 report advance or decline in various lines of building material too extensively for brief tabulation.

These returns are obtained from contractors and builders throughout the state and are verified by similar returns received from workingmen in the following trades: Bricklayers, carpenters, stonecutters, stonedressers, gasfitters, glaziers, hod carriers, lathers, mantel workers, masons, painters, paper hangers, plasterers, plumbers, roofers, sash, door and blind makers, shingle mill operatives, stairbuilders, varnishers, and planing and saw mill hands.

HIS NIGHT'S REST.

Can't Stand the Baby, So He Hires a Room in a Hotel.

My friend Jones is one of the most irritable and impatient men I know. He received a lesson the other night, however, well calculated to increase his somewhat limited stock of patience and tone down his irritability for some time to come, remarks a writer in the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Needless to remark, Jones is married—very much married, he says. He has a charming wife, a patient little woman, whom he bullies on all occasions, and who lately presented him with an heir in the shape of a bouncing, strong-lunged baby boy.

Of course the infant "yowls" at night, as Jones expresses it. "Confound it, can't you keep that brat quiet?" is all the sympathy he bestows on poor Mrs. Jones, while the latter is exhausting herself with every manner of device in order to keep the infant's wails from the ears of her irascible husband.

"There," yelled Jones, on the evening in question, "yell, you young fiend," and addressing his poor wife he added: "If you would only exercise the proper care over the young one he wouldn't squall so. I'm going down town to a hotel to get some sleep, I am."

And with this Jones arose, dressed himself and left the house. He applied for a room, a quiet room at a well known Broadway hotel. It was then near midnight.

"Sorry we haven't any single rooms, sir," observed the hotel clerk. "I can give you a large room with three beds in it, though, if you want to take your chances. After this time of night it is not likely to be wanted."

Jones concluded to "take his chances," and was soon ensconced in a large double bed in a corner of the room, near a window. "Now I can take some rest," he muttered, as he turned down the lights and prepared himself for sleep. "Gracious Peter, what was that?" he suddenly exclaimed, jumping out of bed.

The door of his room was unceremoniously unlocked at this moment, as a hall boy entered and deliberately lit the gas. Following the boy were two well dressed young men in an advanced stage of intoxication.

"Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-aye—hooray!—Ah, there, Jobbots (to the astonished Jones), le'sav 'noth'r drink—She's my sweetheart—'Rah for us—We're the stuff!"

These and other yells broke in upon the rest of the disconsolate Jones, who remarked rather mildly:

"Gentlemen, would you mind making less noise? You see, my baby at home—"

"Whazzer matter with y'r baby? Give 'm a drin'r whisker. Come, have a drink of the old stuff, whiskers," interrupted the riotous young men in chorus.

It was no use. Jones couldn't sleep. He was in for it now with a vengeance. The newcomers managed to make the night more or less hideous; nor did they desist until far into the morning, when they finally, and to the intense satisfaction of Jones, took their departure. Then Jones, with a devout sigh of relief, turned over and prepared to snatch a few hours of needed sleep.

Bang! bang! came on the door just as Jones had relapsed into a refreshing doze. Bang! bang! the knocks were repeated.

"O, Lord," groaned Jones, getting up and opening the door. "What the dash blank do you want?" said he to a porter who appeared on the threshold.

"Are you the gent as wanted to be waked at 8 o'clock?" he asked.

"Am I the man—get out!" yelled Jones, slamming the door and going back to bed. He was interrupted several times after that by hall boys porters and chambermaids. He had lost the key somehow, and the door wouldn't stay shut. In final despair, and utterly exhausted from loss of sleep, he arose and wended his way homeward.

"Well, dear, did you miss a pleasant night and get some sleep?" was the greeting his wife gave him as he opened the door of his home. "And why are you not at business? Why did you come home at this time of the morning?" she again queried.

"Why did I come home?" repeated Jones with a look of abject melancholy. "I came home to get some sleep; that's what I did." And then Jones went to his room and locked himself in.

A CHAPEL ON WHEELS.

I saw a contrivance in Washington, D. C., the other day which shows that our open air evangelists are not up to the times It was a broad and comfortable wagon, with seats for 20 or 30 persons, and the lettering on the outside showed that it belonged to some mission, the name of which I have forgotten. At one end sat the choir in seats arranged especially to carry their voices for a respectable distance. One side was so arranged that it could be unfolded and turned into a very respectable pulpit, from which one speaker after another discoursed to large and respectful audiences. The whole of this chapel on wheels was prettily illuminated with arc lights festooned under the cover, while a pair on movable brackets could be pushed out so as to lend especial illumination to each speaker's face. This Gospel wagon moved from one public square to another, "preaching the Gospel to every creature."

THE TRUE LAXATIVE PRINCIPLE

Of the plants used in manufacturing the pleasant remedy, Syrup of Figs, has a permanently beneficial effect on the human system, while the cheap vegetable extracts and mineral solutions, usually sold as medicines, are permanently injurious. Being well-informed, you will use the true remedy only. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

Few people are aware that we are indebted to the people of old Pompeii, who were all smothered in the first century of the Christian era, for one of the most important industries of our time—the canning business. Years ago when the first excavations were made in that buried city, an American came upon several jars of figs. When they were opened the contents were found to be as fresh and palatable as when they were put up 18 centuries before. Investigation instituted upon the spot proved that the fruit had been put into jars in a highly heated state, and that an aperture for the escape of steam had been left in the lid, which, when it had served its purpose, was sealed over with wax. Yankee ingenuity caught the idea at once, and the next year canning factories were erected all over the United States.

RUN ON A BANK.

London, Sept. 12.—There is a prodigious run to-day on the Birkbeck bank. Francis Ravenscroft, manager, 29 and 30 Southampton buildings, Chancery Lane, W. C. The Birkbeck is a favorite bank with small depositors, and it is allied with the Birkbeck Building society. This connection appears to be the sole ground for the run, which is a consequence of the conditional stoppage of the Liberator society. The Birkbeck bank is believed to be sound.

FIREMEN AT THE THEATERS.

So Many Duties That the Detail Is Robbed of Its Pleasures.

A fireman when he has to do duty at a theater has no sinecure, if he follows the rules, says the New York World. He should be at his post on the stage half an hour before the time named for the performance to begin, and should not return to quarters without being satisfied that the place is from no cause in danger of fire.

His first and last duties are to explore the stage and notice all sources of danger, such as wings, traps or openings for stage effects, flies, border-light shields, and insist on accumulation of dust or rubbish being removed. He must also have an eye on colored fires, calcium lights, powder, pyrotechnics and even firearms, and see that they do not imperil either person or property. He has also to look after handy water or extinguishers, and to see that both are ready in a moment for emergency.

The theater fireman has standing instructions for such emergencies to be alert, but by example to calm apprehension, in fact, to make himself so conspicuously indifferent as to belittle the peril. He must also note and report each and every violation of the laws regulating places of amusement. Listen to no one if he is sure that he is performing his duty, and brook no interference. He is for the nonce superior to all theater attaches in surveillance over gas fixtures, and can order those who manage the gas and electric lights to do whatever he may think best to prevent fires or accidents.

He also has to be sure that on the program is printed a correct diagram of the theater, with its exits, and to test the fire-alarm box so that he may be sure it is in working order. In doing all this he knows that the instructions to his superior, whose duty it is to visit him, are that such visits shall be at irregular times, so that he may not know the precise time of being under inspection.

James Robinson, the athletic trainer at Princeton College, Princeton, N. J., says: "I have found it imperative to have sure and simple remedies on hand in case of cuts, bruises, strains, sprains, colds, rheumatism, etc. Shortly after entering my profession, I discovered such a remedy in Allcock's Porous Plasters. I tried other plasters, but found them too harsh and irritating. Allcock's Porous Plasters give almost instantaneous relief, and their strengthening power is remarkable. In cases of weak back put two plasters on the small of the back and in a short time you will be capable of quite severe exercise. In "sprint" and "distance" races and jumping, the muscles or tendons in the legs and feet sometimes weaken. This can invariably be relieved by cutting the plaster in narrow strips, so as to give free motion, and applying on muscles affected."

John Gifford, instructor of botany at Swarthmore college, Pennsylvania, has been studying the archæology of southern New Jersey for some time past. He found many Indian relics while exploring near Mary's Landing.

KILLING OCCUPATIONS.

Trades in Which Human Lives Are Surely Sacrificed.

My lady, delicately tracing embroidery upon fine linen, knows nothing, cares less, about the men who fashioned the needle she holds in her tapering fingers. But those men shortened their lives in the making of it, perhaps by the infinitesimal fraction of a second for that particular needle, but when they ground it and polished it they inhaled into their lungs the invisible particles of steel that flew from the whirring stone. Consumption is a very common disease among needlemakers.

No need to mold lead into bullets to make it deadly. Workers of lead, house painters, artists, gilders, calico printers, typefounders and typesetters, shot-founders, potters and braziers will tell you that. So will the workmen who handle vulcanized rubber, those who wrap goods in tinfoil, even the fishmongers who handle lead counters covered with brine. Lead poisoning, next to alcoholic poisoning, is perhaps the commonest toxic condition. And "alcoholic poisoning" is vulgarly known as a "jag," so it is easy to judge the frequency of chronic lead poisoning. "Lead colic" is almost as prevalent as that other colic that rouses the happy father and sets him to pacing the floor with squalling son and heir.

When a man suffers from chronic lead poisoning his digestion is disturbed. He has no appetite, and his skin usually takes on a peculiar yellow hue. His gums show a characteristic blue line, which is sulphide of lead deposited there. He has pains in his joints and oftentimes paralysis. His paralysis usually affects the extensor muscles of the hands and fingers, and so produces what is popularly called "drop wrist." Once in a while lead poisoning affects the brain. A case is recorded where a painter suffering from it thought he saw "wind bags blown up to look like men," and other apparitions which made remarks to him and caused him a great deal of anxiety. With all due deference to the medical faculty, it would seem doubtful whether talk about "wind bags blown up to look like men" should be taken as an evidence of insanity. There surely are such things in real life.

Workmen employed at extracting gold from its ores, those who silver mirrors, makers of barometers and thermometers have, of course, to live in an atmosphere more or less impregnated with mercury. So do those who etch, who color the finer sorts of wool and who take part in the manufacture of felt hats. In these latter occupations the mercury is in the form of its nitrate. Mercury is the delight of every dentist whose heart is really in his work. Too much of it salivates a man and makes his teeth drop out, so that a mirror silverer is extremely apt to go mumbling, toothless, through life like a "lean and slippery pantaloon."

Photographers, makers of hair dyes and of marking ink handle a great deal of silver. That lot might seem to be very enviable, but in those cases the silver is the nitrate or one of its various other compounds. It is extremely liable to change the color of the man who handles it, particularly that much of him as is exposed to the light. First his nails and fingers, then his hands and face turn from white to grayish blue and then to black. That must be extremely annoying. Such a man like the Prince of Morocco in "The Merchant of Venice" would be "mightily" for his complexion." Besides, he would suffer from all sorts of constitutional effects very much like those that follow lead poisoning.—New York World.

ARTIFICIAL GLACIERS.

When They Are Erected Ice Will Retail at a Dollar a Ton.

"What New York wants to insure a cheap and continuous supply of ice is artificial glaciers," said the crank.

"What on earth is an artificial glacier?" demanded a chap who had just finished his twentieth glass of beer and who was naturally interested in the continuous supply of ice.

"An artificial glacier is a sort of Eiffel tower built into the upper regions of the atmosphere," the crank explained. "There is a series of hoppers attached to it. The moisture condenses in the hopper and freezes in those upper strata of air, making a block of ice three feet long by one foot deep. It is then lowered to the ground and sold at the prevailing market rate. The freezing, you will observe, has been accomplished free of charge."

"That's a good scheme," put in a fat man, "and you can book my order right now for a five cent piece of ice delivered at the house three times a week."

"Would the thing pay?" asked the beer drinker.

"Pay!" Why, there's a fortune in it. The cost of the framework for the glacier would be $1,000,000. The output should be 1,000 tons a day, which, at 50 cents a ton, delivered on the ground—we could get a good deal more than that—would mean an income of $500 a day, enough to make every one connected with the scheme rich.

"Another valuable adjunct to the artificial glacier would be the toboggan slide and ice cream factory. You mix your ice cream stuff and hoist it half way to the moon and it freezes in a moment."

"What put the idea into your head?" demanded the fat man.

"The insolence of an ice company that refused to trust me. I don't mind admitting that it's a spite scheme to get even with them. You have ordered a five cent piece three times a week. I'll bet it won't fit in your refrigerator. Why do you know how much ice you'll get for five cents, man? You'll receive just one hundred pounds.

"I'm not taking orders just yet, but when I begin the directors of a certain company I can name will begin to shiver I can tell you."

HE WAS A "CAD."

Close Lines Drawn by One Broadway Chappie on Etiquette.

"The fellow is a cad, I say, a rank cad."

As the first pink duds said last night in the Hoffman cafe, his pallid face flushed with excitement.

"How so?"

"Oh, my dear-rr fello-oo, how could you inquire, after-rr what you saw him do?"

"What did he do?"

"As the fel'o-oo went along smoking his swiggerette after-rr dinner-rr his hand, the hand, dontchewknow, with which he was conveying the ma-atch to the swiggerette to get fi-rre, dontchewknow, suddenly slipped and the ma-atch fell to the floor-rr."

"Well?"

"Wal, the cad actual'y picked up the ma-atch, dontchewknow, off the dirty bar-rr rwoom floor-rr!"

Captain Charles King, author of many military novels, R. H. Savage, who wrote "My Official Wife," and Professor Arthur S. Hardy, writer of "But Yet a Woman" and other books, were all cadets together at West Point in 1865.
